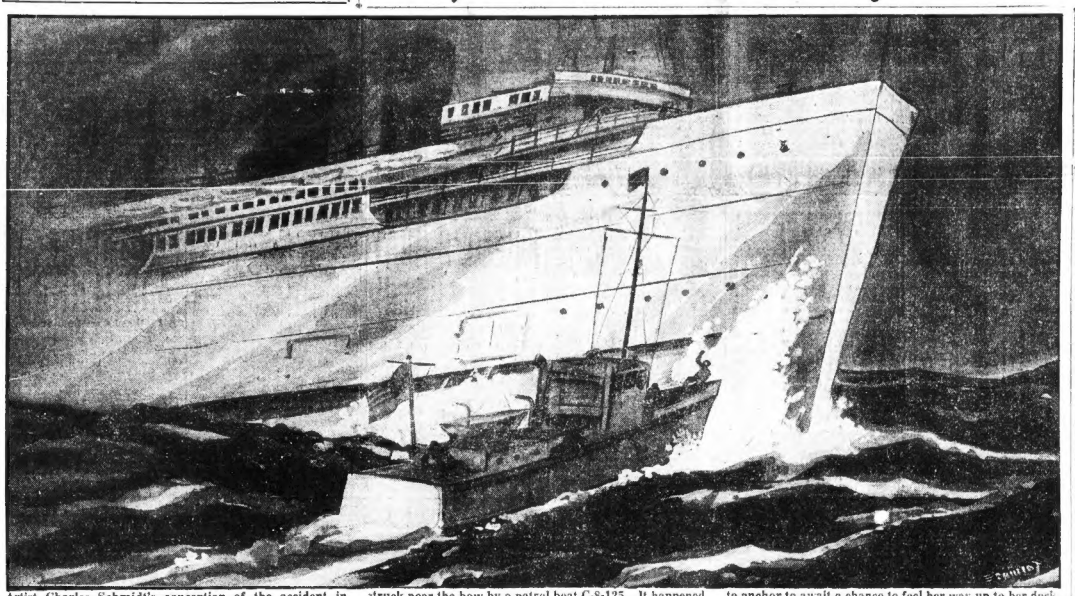
HOW CHASER HIT LINER

BOSTON-NEW YORK LINER RAMMED BY RUM CHASER

500,000 Cheer Lindy in St. Louis Parade



Artist Charles Schmidt's conception of the accident in lower Boston Harbor when the big liner New York was struck near the bow by a patrol boat C-8-125. It happened in a fog while the steamship, six hours late, was coming to anchor to await a chance to feel her way up to her dock. Officers succeeded in calming the passengers, !

LINER RAMMED IN HUB HARBOR IN DENSE FOG; 800 THROWN IN PANIC

The Boston-bound steamer New York of the Eastern Steamship Line, with 800 holiday voyagers aboard, was rammed today in a thick fog off Finn's Ledge in outer Boston Harbor by the Coast Guard patrol boat CG-152.

Passengers on the liner, already tremulous because of the fog-blanket, were thrown into a panic. Officers of the vessel quieted them as women screamed and men ran excitedly to the rail. One woman fainted.

One of the rum chaser's crew was knocked overboard as the ships came together, the nose of the patrol boat splintering itself against the liner's prow on the starboard side, and two others dove into the water to save him. They were all rescued.

As they floundered about in the sea, dangerously near to being crushed by both vessels, life preservers were thrown to them without success. Boats were then launched by both the patrol boat crew and the steamer's crew and one of these small boats picked them up.

John H. Kelley, coxswain, was the man knocked overboard, and the two who leaped to save him were Stanley G. Wilson, cook, and Herbert Condon, chief motor machinist's mate. Chief Boatswain's Mate Michael Mitchell, Frank J. Devine, Earl P. Hinrichsen and Emmett H. Barnett were the others in the crew.

ST. LOUIS 'HOME FOLK' GO WILD OVER LINDY

By WILLIAM R. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

St. Louis, June 18.—Rich with the plaudits of nations, kings and presidents, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh received a royal welcome home today from the city that gave him to the arms of fame.

The "Lone Eagle" came back to the "home folk" of his cradle and they took him to their hearts. A half-million people lined the streets as the world hero rode in a brief parade, staged solely that his home folk might see him, freed from the conquest of the Atlantic.

And the tribute, coming as might from children to their parents, warmed the youth's heart, for he was a boy assembled with the people that had decided the world.

SAME OLD "SLIM."

The dreams of the youth of the world were personified in Lindbergh's return. It was but three weeks ago that he left here on a desolate mail pilot, but in a twinkling of an eyelid, almost, the world changed with the world's hero, with his manner at his side as he rode in the open car.

And of all new homes, he said, this was the one he loved the most—the one where love, deep seed of faithful soil, of his own home folk.

He rode in an open car through the streets of his home city, his face warmed the youthful heart, for he

He Uses Worms Dollar Rule Will Last And Marriage Will Last A Miracle of Power

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1927, by star Company

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE, fishing for trout, uses worms instead of flies that look like birds of paradise. Millions of rugged Americans will respond to that. They also dug worms, and most of them caught catfish and perch. President Coolidge's fishing in South Dakota has been successful thus far, more successful than that of gentlemen fishing for his delegates in the East, while he is in the West.

AN EPISCOPALIAN clergyman of Ann Arbor, Mich., is supposed to have advocated "experimental unions" without marriage to diminish promiscuous immorality, kills the "double standard" and discourages divorce.

Bishop Manning of New York says any clergyman advocating "unmarried unions" or "sex experiments" for the young "would be a disgrace to the Christian Church."

It is not necessary to worry. The young want no "temporary unions." They want perpetual happiness, seek some person that represents it, believe it is attainable and marry. Sometimes they are disappointed, usually the man's fault, but marriage will continue and be a perfect success when men become fit for it. It's a training school now.

POLICE BULLETS HALT MAN TRAPPED IN HOUSE

One of three bullets from a police revolver fired by Patrolman Peter Hayes of the Brighton station, this afternoon, hummed low close to the head of a house-breaking suspect who gave his name as Charles V. Foley and a Roxbury address, and ended a half-mile chase through yards and over hedges as suddenly that it was thought Foley was shot. He was arrested on suspicion.

Foley was found by Patrolman Duffy in the house of David Abelli at 132 Chestnut road. Seeing the patrolman Foley fled, diving through a screen door.

Hayes followed and in the chase which led to Commonwealth avenue fired three shots. At the third Foley dropped. He was not hit. After the arrest the police found a jimmy in the street near the Abelli house.

1,000 IDLE WHILE FORD PLANT MAKES CHANGES

The Somerville assembling plant of the Ford Motor Company is closed and employes laid off for an indefinite period, probably six or eight weeks, while equipment changes are being made for the new line of Ford cars.

More than 1,000 employes are affected. No official announcement of the closing was made by the company, it being disclosed by workmen.

Changes in assembling equipment and tools are made necessary by the radical alterations in the new model Fords, which are expected on the market in the late Summer or Fall.

The Somerville plant, near the Fellsway, has been in operation several months, having replaced the old Cambridge plant. There is no manufacturing done there, the entire plant being devoted to assembling parts shipped here from Detroit.

HUB-NEW YORK LINER RAMMED BY COAST GUARD PATROL BOAT

BOO ABOARD SEE THREE RESCUES

The CG152, with a hole in her port bow, considerably damaged otherwise and leaking as well, went to its base at East Boston, refusing aid proffered by Captain H. W. Robinson of the New York.

The New York, its engines stopped, was about to anchor because of the fog when the crash occurred, according to Captain Robinson, who brought his vessel to its dock shortly after the collision, six hours late on the trip from New York.

With the jolt of the crash, passengers left their staterooms and crowded to the rail, many of them beseeching the officers and crew to tell them whether there was any danger. Some came running from their staterooms with precious belongings in their arms.

WATCHED RESCUE.

Crowded about the rail several hundred of the capacity passenger list watched the work of rescuing the Coast Guardsmen.

Damage to the New York-to-Boston steamer was minor, Vice-President Andrew H. Sides of the company, declared and he announced the New York would sail this evening on its regular schedule.

"We were stopped for fully three minutes and expected the CG152, which we could see coming, to pass us without trouble," said Captain Robinson. "We had been preparing to anchor and were perhaps drifting a little.

"The Coast Guard boat hit us in passing. Three men went over board from the patrol boat as she hit and we picked them up with a boat lowered over the side. The 152 put out a boat, too, but we reached the struggling men first.

"We placed the Coast Guards aboard their own boat which started soon afterward for its base."

SAW MEN JUMP.

"Standing near the rail, I saw three men jump into the churning sea as the patrol boat hit us," said Mrs. Bartholomew Kiley of Dorchester, a passenger returning on the New York.

"Out of the mist a voice came to us, 'Have you got our men?' Women were screaming as a boat was lowered from our ship, but the officers assured us that there was no danger, that the boat was putting off to rescue the Coast Guards and we had nothing to fear."

Harry Smollansky and Joseph Steinberg, New York musicians, among her passengers, said: "The New York was drifting and the fog was thick all around us. There was a crash and a jolt and everybody was sure we were in collision with something big.

"That was enough to give us all a fright out there in the fog, and the passengers got pretty much excited. I saw one woman faint. Everybody rushed to the rail, while the members of the crew threw up to us to keep quiet, that there wasn't any danger.

"We watched the crew throw lifepreservers to the Coast Guards in the water and finally saw them picked up safely, taken into a boat that put off from the New York. It was a dramatic rescue.

"The CG-152 seemed to be much damaged, her stem splintered and otherwise hurt. The steamer's crew restored quiet in short order and passengers who had carried overcoats and other things from their staterooms, ready for flight from the ship, returned their belongings, rather abashed at their fright."

An investigation of the accident was ordered by Coast Guard officials.

DEAN TALBOT OF M. I. T. DIES IN HOSPITAL

Dr. Henry P. Talbot, dean of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and internationally known authority on chemistry, died at City Hospital today.

Dr. Talbot had been in ill health for several months. Recently he underwent an operation from which he appeared to be convalescing satisfactorily.

He is survived by Mrs. Talbot, formerly Frances E. Dukehart of Baltimore; two brothers, Dr. John E. of Worcester and James of Dunedin, Fla., and a sister, Mrs. P. F Leland of Hollston.

The progressive development of chemical education in America owes much to the far-reaching influence of Dr. Talbot, whose life was devoted to instruction and research in chemistry.

TEXT BOOK AUTHOR.

Dr. Talbot made many contributions to scientific literature. In addition to numerous papers on research, he was the author of one of the most widely read text books on chemistry. He collaborated on other works and was consulting editor of the International Chemical Series comprising books covering a wide range of subjects in the field of chemistry.

For several years Dr. Talbot was chairman of the committee of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences in charge of the C. M. Warren fund the income of which is devoted to chemical research.

VALUABLE WAR SERVICE.

During the World War Dr. Talbot was appointed a member of a committee to act in an advisory capacity to the United States Bureau of Mines in connection with the work of organizing the chemical activities of the country to meet the problems arising from gas warfare.

His report to the Secretary of War on the needs of this organization, which, outside of the War Department, carried on all activities in gas warfare, was particularly valuable.

He married Frances E. Dukehart of Baltimore January 17, 1891.

Dr. Talbot was a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He was a member of various professional societies and of the St. Botolph and the University clubs.

U. S. HAS 80 P. C. WORLD'S AUTOS

Washington, June 18 (A.P.).—A world census of automobiles made public by the Commerce Department today indicated that on January 1, 1927, there were 27,650,267 automobiles, trucks and buses in operation all over the globe. This was an increase of 3,176,648 over January 1, 1926.

The United States had in operation 80 per cent. of the total, or 22,137,334 machines. The United Kingdom was second with 1,062,651; France third with $91,000 and Canada fourth with 826,918. Other countries with large quotas were in the order named: Australia, 366,615; Germany, 319,000; Argentina, 222,610; Italy, 138,177; Spain, 135,000, and New Zealand, 123,224.

$50,000 ESTATE GIVEN NEPHEW

With the exception of a few personal bequests, Walter J. Reed of Milton is to get the $50,000 estate of his late aunt, Mrs. Florence Whitney, widow of Walter S. Whitney, as the result of a verdict given by a jury in Suffolk court who sustained Mrs. Whitney's will.

Mrs. Jennie Jordan of New York, a sister of Mrs. Whitney, and several nieces, contested the will, claiming unsoundness of mind and undue influence. One claim was that Mrs. Whitney had hallucinations about being connected with the late Mrs. Jack Gardner, and other prominent persons.

Mrs. Whitney's husband was a confidential employe of Lee, Higginson and Company. She lived at No. 16 Columbia road, Dorchester, for several years and then made her home with her nephew, Walter J. of Reed.

INJURED.

Charles J. McCarthy, 29, of Pope street court, East Boston, compound fracture of left leg.

Leslie Croke, 40, No. 283 Dudley street, Roxbury, lacerated scalp and both thighs broken.

Henry Boswell, 27, of Franklin street, Waverley, severe lacerations of head and shoulders.

Traveling at a fast rate of speed, according to the police, the automobile in which all four were riding crashed into a steel trolley wire pole. The car turned over, the body separated from the chassis and two heaps of wreckage blocked the street. At first view it looked as if two automobiles had collided and rebounded, both badly wrecked.

Rev. Francis Egan of St. Williams' Church, Dorchester avenue, helped drag the injured from under the debris and administered the last sacrament to two of the men. Two ambulances were called to the scene.

Dr. Allen had just completed his course at the Harvard Medical School and was preparing to leave for his home in Brooklyn, N. Y., today with his bride.

Boswell is believed to have been driving the demolished car. He is night manager of a restaurant in Newspaper row and, according to the police, is the owner of the car. Croke, whose smashed legs were almost dangling from his torso, is a linotype operator on the Boston Post, while McCarthy is an attorney.

had started on the second floor, so that there was no possibility of the family escaping by the stairways.

Archetti stood helpless as he heard the shrieks of Mrs. Charette and the wailing of the little ones.

Then he noticed the awnings folded above the doors of the four stores on the ground floor. Quickly he ran to each store and let down the awnings. Mr. and Mrs. Charette soon saw his plan.

While he waited with outstretched arms the weeping father and mother first dropped from the window their oldest boy, Theodore, 16 years old.

Theodore dropped the 15 feet, struck the awning, bounced, and then slid down safely into the arms of Archetti.

In quick succession the parents lowered Hector, 12, Edward 14, and George, 4.

Meanwhile, William Donahue and Harry Davis had rung in the alarm.

Mrs. Charette decided she could wait a few minutes before tempting the hazardous drop to safety, and in a short time, she, with the baby in her arms, were taken down the ladders by the firemen.

Then the firemen fought their way through the flames on the second floor and carried down the ladders to safety Mrs. Josephine Currier, Albert Porter and Mrs. Ernest Lavertu.

Fireman Daniel Maloney heard the groans of a woman in a locked room on the second floor. Lacking any other weapon, he smashed through the panel of the door with his fist, and took Mrs. Carrie Levesque to from Essex street.

However, when it was thought that the house had been cleared of every living thing, two little Boston terriers appeared at one of the top windows whining pitifully.

They had been forgotten by the Charettes in their own terror. Motor Cycle Officer Everett Down ran up the one ladder that had been left standing and, amid the cheers of thousands, brought down the dogs.

The police were compelled to establish fire lines to keep the crowds back. Chief McPhee estimated the property damage as at least $25,000.

panion. Floyd Bennett. Bennett, originally selected to pilot the "America" on its non-stop flight across the Atlantic, was so seriously injured when the "America" crashed at Peterboro Airport, N. J., in April, that Bert Acosta had to take his place in the crew. Bennett, however, was expected to pay a visit to the "America" at its hangar today, plans having been made to convey him here from St. Vincent's Hospital, New York, where he is still under treatment.

Many women have deluged Byrd with requests to fly as the prospective fourth member of the "America" crew.

There was little activity at the hangar today. The plane has only 36 gallons of gasoline in its tanks, whereas 1,300 gallons are needed to feed three motors on the long transocean flight. Final fueling of the "America" is all that remains to be done before the take-off.

James H. Kimball, meteorologist at the United States Weather Bureau in New York, said the flying weather on the Atlantic today is unfavorable and will probably continue so tomorrow. Mr. Kimball's records showed a moderately low pressure area extending from Horta to about 250 miles from Lands End. He said the weather over Newfoundland is "generally foggy," but that it is fair from New York to Cape Breton Island.

LEVINE FLIES WITH GERMAN GIRL PILOT

Berlin, June 18 (I.N.S.).—Charles A. Levine won forgiveness from his wife for having hopped off from New York on a transatlantic flight without having announced his intentions.

Levine's restoration to good grace with Madame Levine didn't last long, however.

At Magdeburg, Thea Rasche, 25-year-old German girl aviator, invited Levine to fly with her, just to show him some of her ability and to perhaps convince him that she should pilot the Bellanca plane back to Berlin.

Levine pulled on a flying suit much to the annoyance of Mrs. Levine, who shouted, "That's dumb!" as her husband and the girl flier took off in a two-seater, and then Thea began doing stunts.

Levine flew to Berlin with the girl and announced his great satisfaction with the flight. Mrs. Levine, on the other hand, advancing to meet her husband, remarked, "I'll wring his neck."

From then on the incident seems to have been a private family matter.

Berlin, June 18 (A.P.).—Accompanied by their wives, Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, American transatlantic fliers, were back in Berlin today making preparations for their flights to Vienna and Prague and possible visits to other European cities to which they have been invited.

CONVICTION OF 3 RUM RUNNERS IS SUSTAINED

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today handed down a decision sustaining the conviction of Patrick A. McDonnell of Boston, David Siegal and Robert H. (Harry) Brown of Lynn, found guilty by a Federal grand jury in May, 1926, on indictments charging them with conspiracy to smuggle liquor at Little's Point, Swampscott. The acts charged in the indictment covered a period in 1924 and 1925.

McDonnell was sentenced by Judge James M. Morton to pay a fine of $3,000 and to serve a sentence of a year and a day. Brown was given a jail sentence of a year and three months and Siegal a year and a day.

William L. Quinn, former chief of police of Swampscott, received at the same time a sentence of fifteen months, which he is now serving in Salem jail. Two former prohibition agents, William T. Newell and Hugh Wyllie, who were also named, were found not guilty.

The three men whose conviction was sustained in today's ruling have sixty days to appeal to the United States Supreme Court before their sentence takes effect.

BIRTH RATE IS DOWN, DEATH RATE UP

Washington, June 18 (A.P.).—Declining birth rates and increasing death rates were revealed today by the Commerce Department in statistics for 1926 covering twenty-eight of the States from which figures were gathered.

For the area covered in today's report there were 1,597,902 births and 961,783 deaths. The birth rate was 19.1 per 1,000 population, while the death rate was 12.1. In 1925 the birth rate was 21.1 and the death rate 11.7.

The birth rate was lower in twenty-six of the twenty-eight States, while the death rate was higher in twenty-three of the twenty-eight States. The highest birth rate was in Florida, where it was 24.4 per 1,000 population. The lowest was in Montana, 14.2.

Florida also had the highest death rate, 15.3, but Montana had the lowest, 7.8.

Infant mortality rates were shown to have been higher generally in 1926, as twenty-one of the twenty-eight States showed increased figures. Delaware had the highest infant death rate, with 82.9 per 1,000. Oregon was lowest with 51.6 and Portland, Ore., had the best record among the cities with 39.7. The highest rate for cities was at Richmond, Va., 107.4.

HOPPING OFF FOR ST. LOUIS

Lindbergh, in his beloved "Spirit" of the Missouri city, starts from Roosevelt Field for welcome home after six days of strenuous activity in the nation's metropolis.

'SLIM' LINDBERGH, NOT 'LINDY,' WELCOMED HOME BY ST. LOUIS

GENERAL HOLIDAY IS KEPT

with his famous smile. Now and then, he bowed to a friend—some one he knew when he came down out of the Missouri sky with his mail plane only a few weeks ago, tired by the run from Chicago.

Although, in the meantime, he had conquered the great ocean and dropped out of the French sky into immortality, he was the some old Lindbergh.

IN BOOK OF FAME.

The crowds here hailed him as "Slim." He may have been an unknown in the East as he hopped off on his immortal flight; he may have been "America's air ambassador" when Europe crowned him with laurels; he may have been "Our American Boy" when President Coolidge honored him; he may have been "Lindy" to New York's riotous millions; but, here he was "Slim"—and the same old "Slim" as before his name was entered upon the book of fame.

The parade itself differed from all others in which Lindbergh had participated since his flight. Instead of others parading for the youth's benefit, the youth paraded for the people's benefit.

There were only twenty automobiles in line, flanked by a police escort. They carried Lindbergh, his mother, his St. Louis financial backers and a handful of Federal, State and city officials. The soldiers, the sailors, the militia who marched in Washington and New York were merely spectators or guards along the line of march.

DIRIGIBLES OVERHEAD.

Overhead, three army dirigibles added a military and aeronautical touch to the ceremonies. The planes that darkened the skies in the East and the great air escort that brought him here were missing.

The birdmen themselves were in the grandstands, watching "Lindy's" two official homecoming days.

An hour earlier, he attended a formal reception at an outlying hotel in the western residential section. The nation was represented there by Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis and Senator Harry B. Hawes. Governor Sam A. Baker led Missouri's official delegation while Mayor Victor J. Miller headed the city's welcoming contingent.

Crowds that jammed the streets about the hotel and later watched their beloved "Slim" ride through his home town came from all over the Middle West.

500,000 SPECTATORS.

Transportation experts estimated that 100,000 vistors had flocked into St. Louis, swelling the crowds in the streets to at least 500,000.

They came from points as far distant as Detroit, Chicago, Des Moines, Kansas City, Oklahoma City, Little Rock and Indianapolis by train and motor.

This afternoon Colonel Lindbergh assisted at the raising of the world's championship pennant just before the Cardinal-Giants National League baseball game at Sportsmans Park, before a record crowd in grounds that normally seat 35,000.

Tonight Mayor Victor J. Miller will present the hero of the transatlantic flight with the city's gift—a little golden casket bearing upon its cover a map of the ocean and its western and eastern shores.

A thin raised line of white gold maps out the course "we" took, and mid-way down that line, half way between the old world and the new, is a tiny replica of "The Spirit of St. Louis," Col. Lindbergh's famous plane.

The casket itself contains an illuminated parchment manuscript bearing the welcome of St. Louis, signed with Mayor Miller's signature.

Fifteen hundred guests—perhaps 2,000—will witness the presentation at a formal banquet in the Hotel Chase.

Lindbergh "Decorated" as a "Good Boy Scout"

St. Louis, June 18 (A.P.).—"Slim" Lindbergh is a Boy Scout now and he's tickled about it.

Looking more boyish than at any time since he flared into renown, the New York-to-Paris flier received the honor at the hands of three khaki clad lads who looked not a whit younger than he.

"Thanks: that's great," he said as Scout Murray Cabell, 15, conferred the honor upon him. His eyes twinkled and he smiled happily as Scout Joseph Erhardt, 14, presented him an ordinary Boy Scout knife. "O Scout Lindy," it said, and Scout Lindy looked as if he wanted to open the knife right then, make whittlings for a campfire or maybe open a can of beans.

In his long, trustworthy hand, he also grasped a dollar size red felt insignia—that of the flying eagle patrol—and thanked Scout Roland Homer, 14.

The crowd was so great that administration of the scout oath was hampered, but Scout Cabell said: "When he shook hands I knew he was a good scout."

REVERE POLICE PROBE $5,000 BLAZE IN STORE

Revere police and fire officials are investigating a fire that caused $5,000 damage to a story and half store building in Shirley avenue, that city, today. The fire spread rapidly from the rear of a barber shop to the Woolworth and M. O'Keefe stores, giving the fire department a stubborn battle before the flames were under control. The cause of the fire is a mystery.

N. Y. Lindy 'Movie' Show Would Cost $50,000,000

New York, June 18 (A.P.).—The Evening World says that two executives of the motion picture industry estimate it would cost $50,000,000 to film a duplication of New York's greeting to Lindbergh last Monday.

"We have been putting on spectacles for years like 'The Fall of Rome,' 'Destruction of Babylon' and 'Birth of a Nation,'" said one. "We have spent millions—and we have never come within touching distance of the show New York put on."

The executives' estimate figured the cost of hiring ships, planes, police and supers and "scenery" at $200,000 a block.

CO-OPERATE IN SLAYER HUNT

Lawrence, June 18.—City Marshal Timothy J. O'Brien and members of the State, Lawrence and Salisbury Beach police departments met in conference here today to establish a program of co-operation in the search for George Elmer Taylor, wanted in connection with the murder of Stella Kale, whose body was found on the sands of Salisbury Beach, June 6.

Heretofore, the officials have been conducting independent search, but under the new plan they will combine forces and will further attempt to unify their activities with those of the New Hampshire and Vermont police. A reward of $500 has been offered by the town of Salisbury for the arrest of the girl's murderer, and it is expected a similar reward will be offered by the city of Lawrence.

State Policeman Dowe today left for Kensington, N. H., where he expects to interview the man who purchased a watch from Taylor, which proved to be that which had been worn by the slain girl.

TABLET IS GIVEN TO RADCLIFFE

Presentation of a bronze tablet to be placed in the Harvard Observatory featured the alumnae reunion of Radcliffe classes dating as far back as 1896, held today at the Cambridge institution.

The memorial in tribute to Henrietta Swan Leavitt, a famous astronomer, who died six years ago, was a gift from the class of 1892 and presented by Miss Sarah W. Brooks of Concord and Mrs. Frederick L. Dunlap of Chicago.

Following the class luncheons, an alumnae play was held in Agassiz House, the classes of 1920, 1917 and 1924 participating. Miss Catherine McCoy, '24, of Washington, was general chairman and head usher.

ATTY. FELIX FORTE MADE ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR

Among the promotions at Boston University this year is that of Atty. Felix Forte, who has been named an associate professor of law. Mr. Forte was born in the North End 31 years ago, graduating from the Eliot Grammar School in 1908, English High School 1912. He then worked as newspaper reporter for one and a half years and entered Boston University Law School in December, 1914, completing the three years' course in two and a half years, graduating from the law school in 1916 Cum Laude.

Prof. Forte

He began the teaching of law in Boston University Law School in September, 1921. Professor Forte was admitted to the practice of law in 1916. Because of his youth he had to obtain special permission of the bar examiners to be permitted to take the examination.

Will Rogers Has Good Night

Los Angeles, June 18 (A.P.).—Will Rogers spent a "fairly good night" after an operation for gall stones.

MARY PICKFORD GUARDED FROM KIDNAPERS

Beverly Hills, Cal., June 18.—"America's Sweetheart" is "Machine Gun Mary" now.

Mary Pickford, the beautiful screen star, is menaced by kidnapers, in the opinion of the local police, they having received information that a huge plot has been hatched by desperate men, the plan being to kidnap several movie stars and demand ransoms of $1,000,000.

Mary of the golden hair was to be the first victim, according to the information received by the police. Accordingly the little actress went to her studio from Pickfair, the home of the star and her actor-husband, Douglas Fairbanks, guarded by machine guns.

In her automobile a brawny guard, armed with a hand-machine gun, sat on one side, while Doug himself, armed with a like weapon, sat on the other side. Two other guards, heavily armed, rode on motor-cycles behind the Pickford car.

At the studio the regular police force was redoubled, and many of the actors were armed.

The story of the plot loses some of the dime-novel atmosphere that seems to attach itself to it at first sight when it is realized that two men are now serving prison sentences for a similar plan which narrowly missed being successful two years ago.

Mary herself seems to be the one least fearful of the small army working on her lot. Asked if she was not afraid of kidnapers, she replied, "They wouldn't dare to do anything here. I have too many of my friends around me."

There were more than 400 friends, including extras, about the lot ready for the picture on which Mary is working.

Coolidge Wears '10-Gallon' Hat to Go Fishing

Rapid City, S. D., June 18 (A.P.).—President Coolidge put on a "ten-gallon" hat of a size and shape that would make a movie actor or a cowboy justly envious, slipped on a pair of rubber hip boots and went to Squaw Creek early today to angle for mountain trout.

The President was up at his usual early hour and breakfasted on brook trout which he caught last evening.

He had a busy day before him, including a reception to several hundred newspaper editors who were to be received after a buffalo and elk barbecue at Camp Galena, a short distance from the Summer White House.

DIPLOMAS IN FALL RIVER ACCEPTED UNDER PROTEST

Fall River, June 18 (A.P.).—Diplomas awarded to 477 students, the largest class to graduate from the high school in its history, were accepted under protest today, Aurele Lavoie, president of the graduating class, informed the parents and friends attending. He explained this as due to the changing of the name of the school from B. M. C. Durfee High School to Fall River High School. Principal Charles V. Carroll of the school publicity censored the student president for his declaration.

The name was changed by the school committee. Repeated protests have been made by groups of citizens.

ADAMS MAN HELD IN FATAL SHOOTING

Adams, June 18 (A.P.).—Lawrence Montville pleaded not guilty to a charge of manslaughter and was held in $5,000 in district court here today in connection with the shooting of Charles Trombley on a farm on the slope of Mount Greylock. The hearing was continued to June 24.

Charles Paro and Edward Bordeau were held in $500 each as material witnesses. All three told the police that Trombley was shot accidentally when he jostled one of the others who was taking a shotgun into a barn.

GIRL DRIVEN TO AGED MAN BY 'SILLY BOYS'

"I have had many love affairs with boys of my own age, but I have given them all up for Mr. Lucas," she said, at her home in Washinton street, West Newton.

"I found that boys have vacuum minds, don't know what it's all about, cannot de depended upon and besides don't earn enough to meet expenses.

"It's just as easy to love an older man as a young one, and hough Mr. Lucas is much older than I, I love him just the same. He is my ideal of a husband. He has balance, a sense of responsibility and experience.

"We expect to be married soon and to live in one of the homes he owns and I don't care what other people say."

At musicales in the church which both attended, the May-and-December romance began. Both are accomplished musicians and while attending Newton High School Miss Anderson was also a student at New England Conservatory of Music.

She was graduated from high school only last June and was popular among her school chums who called her 'Dot Andy."

Lucas has a daughter 41 years old living in Buffalo. He is having half of a duplex house in Prince street, in the most exclusive part of West Newton, refinished and furnished for a love nest, according to relatives and friends.

MOVE TO STOP CHURCH SUITS

Providence, June 18 (A.P.).—Attorneys representing Providence diocese of the Roman Catholic church today, in Superior Cort, filed demurrers, asking that the twelve suits brought by Elphege J. Daignault of Woonsocket and others, demanding an accounting of parish funds be dismissed without further hearing.

The demurrers claim the Rhode Island courts are without power to adjudicate the suits because certain allegations made are a matter of ecclesiastical and not civil law. Arguments on the demurrers will not be heard until next Fall.

The suits were filed Feb. 12 and 14 and were the outgrowth of discontent on the part of the communicants of several French speaking parishes in Woonsocket, Pawtucket, Central Falls, Phoenix and Arctic, as a result of which it was charged, Rt. Rev. William A. Hickey and Mgr. Peter E. Blessing, as bishop and vicar-general of the diocese respectively and ex-officio members of parish corporations, had mismanaged and illegally expended parish funds.

FAIR WEATHER WILL REMAIN OVER SUNDAY

The area of moderate temperatures and fair weather, which smiled on holiday-makers yesterday, still prevails along the New England coast and is officially predicted to continue for thirty-six hours longer.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Fair tonight and Sunday; not much change in temperature; moderate east to south winds.

German Plans Berlin to San Francisco Hop in 60 Hours

Berlin, June 18 (A.P.).—Otto Koennecke, German pilot who plans a non-stop flight from Berlin to San Francisco, believes he can reach the Pacific Coast inside of sixty hours.

He plans to hop off on July 25, reach San Francisco on July 28, and remain there only four days before starting the return flight.

He will use a three-motor plane carrying sufficient fuel for seventy hours flight and capable of maintaining an average of speed slightly over 124 miles an hour.

Accompanying him will be a relief pilot and two passengers, one of them an unnamed industrialist who is said to be financing the venture.

Koennecke, thirty-five years old, was a German ace in the World War, with a record of forty-six aerial victories.

Bombings in Chicago

Chicago, June 18 (I.N.S.).—Two separate bombings today caused damage totaling $1,000. One was exploded in front of a four-flat building owned by Detective Sergeant David Smith, the other at the grocery store of Vito Fiori. Neither could explain the blasts.

JUDGE LOGAN BUYS DIXON BOAT FOR FRIENDSHIP

An echo of a friendship that dates back to the old political days when Captain Edward "Ned" Dixon, former representative, was a power along Atlantic avenue, was heard today when one of the late skipper's fleet of steamers, the "King Philip", famous fishing ground boat, was sold to Judge Edward L. Logan.

John R. Kewer of 85 Devonshire street did the actual buying, but Judge Logan stood at his side during the sale on T wharf and whispered what to bid in his ear. The famous craft was appraised at $8000, but was sold for $7200.

Judge Logan and Kewer managed to escape in a power boat before they could be asked as to their plans. It is known sentiment had much to do with the judge's buying the boat, for he was a close friend of Capt. Dixon and his father before him. The sale along with three other Dixon boats was to satisfy claims.

The other steamers, Neptune, Nahant and Newcastle, were bought by John F. Burke of 40 Court street for $550, $1350 and $1300, respectively. Mr. Burke said he would probably junk the boats.

THREATENS U. S. ENVOY TO CHILE IN SACCO CASE

A threat against the life of William Miller Collier, United States Ambassador to Chili, and to blow up the embassy in Santiago in the event that Sacco and Vanzetti are executed for the Braintree payroll murder is contained in a letter, a copy of which reached the hands of Governor Fuller today. In addition, what was considered as a threat to the State of Massachusetts and purported to be from the workers in Nice, France, was also received in the Governor's mail.

The Governor, however, refused to let his plans for a day's rest at his Summer home, Rye Beach, be disturbed by the missives.

"If the double murder is carried through," the threat to Ambassador Collier states, "I shall take calmly and tenaciously all measures to carry out my design to eliminate the person of the Ambassador of the Union."

LETTER UNSIGNED.

The letter was unsigned. At the end of the letter was a description of a bomb containing a large amount of dynamite that would be used in revenge on Mr. Collier in the event that Sacco and Vanzetti are executed. The writer also intimated that he would sacrifice his own life.

In addition to the threat a copy of the letter of Ambassador Collier to Secretary of State Kellobg, reporting the incident, was sen to the Governor.

The supposed threat of the workers of Nice had been forwarded to the American Consulate there. The "Group of Special Study, Nice Proletarian University," declared themselves "ready to respond to the calls which the advance guard of the organization will send out that in order that in an ultimate effort Sacco and Vanzetti may be wrested from the hands of the American executioners."

MESSAGE FROM NICE.

The Nice workers stated they had heard the delegates of the Communist party, the International Red Benefit, the Unitarian Syndicate, the Socialist party, the acting Anti-Fascist committee, the Group of Social Study and the Masonic lodges.

In other communications 400 citizens of Blida, Algiers, asked for clemency, as did the Tenth International Conference of Labor at Berne, Swutzerland.

The Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters has transmitted a resolution affirming its faith and confidence in Governor Fuller.

ACCUSES KING PURNELL IN HOUSE OF DAVID TRIAL

St. Joseph, Mich., June 18 (I.N.S.).—"King" Benjamin Purnell, chief of the House of David cult, made improper advances to her at the very time he was subjecting her two daughters, Estelle and Edith, to his alleged "blood purification" rites, Mrs. Estelle Mildrim Ranft, 52, formerly of Colorado Springs, Col., testified today in the State's suit to dissolve the colony.

"He tried to pet and fondle me while I was obeying his virgin law and living apart from my husband," said Mrs. Ranft.

MRS. SPENCER FILES MARRIAGE INTENTIONS

Newport, R. I., June 18 (I.N.S.).—Mrs. Mary Sands Spencer and her fiance, Henry Pierrepont Perry, took out marriage intentions at City Hall today. Mrs. Spencer wrote she was born in 1885 and was divorced from Lorillary Spencer in 1922. Mr. Perry wrote that he was born in Brooklyn in 1879 and was divorced in 1917 from the present Mrs. J. Lorimer Worden.

More than 150 invitations were issued today for the Spencer-Perry nuptials set for July 1 at the bride-elect's beautiful cottage.

OFFICIALS RAP ATTACK ON HALF FARES

Attempt to repeal or modify the law requiring half fares for school children was branded as un-American, untimely and a thrust at the proper education of youth in protests made today as the result of the activity of Massachusetts street railways to bring about a change in the law.

Official protest has joined with that of mothers of children, who say repeal or modification of the law would work a hardship on the family pocketbook and tend to discourage education. The protests received today follow:

ERNEST B. CARR, Superintendent of Schools in Marlboro—"I am opposed to any attempt to repeal the provision of the law with regard to the transportation of children at the half-fare rate. Although it would not make much difference in this particular city—because we would find a way to remedy the return of the increased fare—it would work a hardship in nearly every section of the State. The privilege should be retained for the benefit of children and parents."

PATRICK WELSH, Representative from Hyde Park district—"This attempt to change the law requiring half fares for our school children would tend to discourage the education of youth. It is entirely unnecessary. Save the car checks for the kiddies and prevent another raid on the pocketbooks of hard-working wage earners. My vote is against any change in the law.

WILLIAM H. McDONNELL, assistant district attorney for Suffolk County—"The provision of the law which allows school children to ride for half fare should not be repealed at any cost. The members of the General Court passed this statute and it was done after considerable opposition on the part of the railway companies. This new attempt at repeal or modificattion should be nipped in the bud. It is un-American and untimely."

CRUISER LIMIT OPEN QUESTION

Geneva, Switzerland, June 18 (A.P.).—An indication that Great Britain may seek to reopen the question of the size of cruisers was seen by some quarters in a declaration made by W. C. Bridgeman, first lord of the admiralty, on his arrival today to attend the three-power naval conference with the United States and Japan.

The declaration was that all questions concerning limitation of warships would be open for discussion at the conference, which opens Monday.

He announced he would lay definite proposals before the meeting and hoped the discussions would make it easier for nations not participating to adhere later to any principles agreed upon.

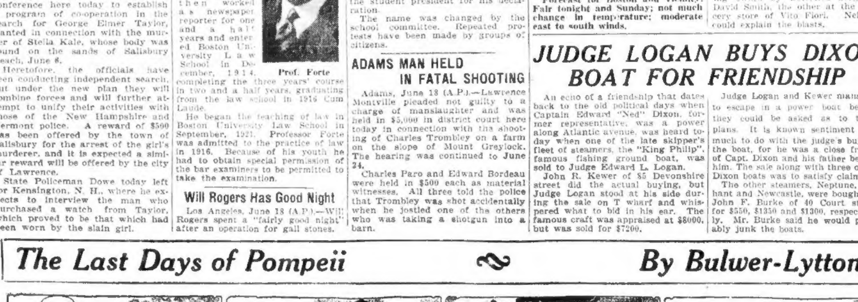
This was an allusion to France and Italy, without whom it is thought Great Britain would hesitate to make a binding accord concerning auxiliary craft, particularly submarines.

Hugh Gibson, American delegate, told the press that the exact status of the French and Italian observers at the conferences had not been determined, but it was hoped they would participate to the fullest possible extent.

LOSES PIN, MONEY AND TWO TEETH AT REVERE

Hector C. Langlois of Hanson street, East Boston, was assaulted and robbed of a diamond pin valued at $225 and $41 in cash by two young men on Revere Beach Boulevard, according to his story to the police. He lost two teeth in the scuffle.

The Last Days of Pompeii ∾ By Bulwer-Lytton



ON the fatal day in the arena the lion, instead of attacking Glaucus, ran frantically around the arena. Sallust, friend of Glaucus, who had freed the priest, reached the Praetor and convinced him that Arbaces was guilty. The anger of the people turned to Arbaces and they surged toward the spot where he stood.

THE people would have killed Arbaces had he not thundered a warning, pointing toward Vesuvius. The mountain was pouring out lava, fire and smoke. An earthquake shook the amphitheatre. It was the forewarning of this that had frightened the lion. Glaucus escaped through the demoralized crowd, seeking Ione.

GLAUCUS found Ione and Nydia. One earthquake followed another and showers of ashes made the day of Pompeii like night. In the confusion of darkness only the blind girl could lead Glaucus and Ione toward the sea and safety. Arbaces was killed, but Nydia guided her friends to a ship and all three embarked.

THE morning dawned clear and Nydia awoke before Glaucus and Ione. The poor lovesick slave girl could no longer endure the pangs of jealousy, so she slipped overboard and drowned. . . . Glaucus and Ione returned to Greece and married, always holding Nydia in grateful and sorrowful remembrance.

DISTINCTIVENESS so much desired in an engagement ring is assuredly achieved in the diamond solitaires illustrated.

The ring at the left with its square prong gives the effect of an emerald cut stone. In the centre, on either side of the large diamond, is an engraved heart set with a small stone. On the right, the top and sides of the ring are platinum, permitting an exceedingly delicately wrought design.

GEN. CHANG IS CHINA DICTATOR

Peking, June 18 (U.N.S.)—All Americans have been ordered to leave Yunanfu and the United States consulat has been closed, due to fighting within the city between contending generals, United States Consul Jacobs reported today.

Chang Tso Lin today took the oath of office as generalissimo, becoming dictator of the Peking government and awearing to use all his power to reunite China. The ceremony in the imperial palace was colorful, dozens of northern generals appearing in gay dress uniforms.

The palace yards were alive with armed troops and machine guns were mounted at all gates. Chang was escorted by armed troops and traffic was stopped to permit his passage to the Foreign Office, where a reception was held for the diplomatic corps.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY EVENTS

WATCHES RACES

Society Out in Gala Array for Day of Racing Over the Clyde Park Course, Brookline

CERTAINLY NOTHING MORE PERFECT IN THE WAY of "Race Day" could be wished for than yesterday at Clyde Park. A "pretty" day the weather man sent on—bluest of skies and a merry little breeze to temper the bright sun—and as for thrills, there were aplenty furnished by three races in the flat and three steeplechases.

SOCIETY, OF COURSE, PUT ON ITS BEST BIB AND TUCKER and came out in force. Whether Milady's fancy for the races ran to gossamer fabrics or to what Paris chooses to call "sports" attire—the effect was equally entrancing. Against the brilliant greensward of the clubhouse lawn, or in the grandstand and the paddock, feminine raiment played an enormously important part in the picture. Bright blue and bright rose, violet and orchid, yellow in every golden manifestation, a splash of scarlet for emphasis, and the always effective combination of black and white, each was to be seen.

BY WAY OF BEING "DIFFERENT," HERE AND THERE IN THE crush was a wrap that caught the eye in admiration. Miss Peggy Porter's black satin, beautifully embroidered, was such a garment, one that might have come home in her mother's trunks from far Ceylon when Mrs. Charles Porter recently returned from the country of her birth. Miss Margery Richardson's bright red coat also created comment. It was of a striking red cloth, the sort of primitive color that has its origin in the East, and on it were beautifully designed figures in dull gold.

MRS. GEORGE VON L. MEYER, TANNED TO A DELICATE golden tint, wore a frilled silk frock and wide brown hat, all that, frock and coat of tan) vastly becoming to this slender and vivacious young matron. Mrs. Philip Saltonstall's sports frock, Frenchy as could be, was topped by a rose-colored straw banded in velvet. Miss Ellen Hallowell and Miss Hannah Hallowell shaded their pretty faces with wide and drooping chapeaux—rose colored like their frocks, which were pleated as to skirt and had interesting sleeveless jackets.

MISS ELEANOR GIBSON'S WIDE HAT, HER SILK FROCK AND her pert little shoes were all of soft golden beige. Her coat of white had small bright colored figures in formal design. Miss Eleanor Mason's bright blue frock and her wide black hat were, of course, becoming. Miss Mason always knows exactly "what to wear." However many floppy hats may have succumbed to Wednesday's showers, yesterday brought out a fresh supply. Evidently Milady has two favorites. She wears the snuggest of snug chapeaux, or else goes to the other extreme and selects a hat that is younger sister to the umbrella. There's no halfway measure.

MISS EDITH WOLCOTT AND MISS CORNELIA CLARK WORE the latter selection, enormous black affair of finest straw. Mrs. Frederick J. Bradlee, Jr., wore a shoulder wide hat of deep golden brown. Miss Elizabeth Lyman's wide black hat topped a smart two-piece frock of printed and plain silk. Miss Mary Hammond's frock was a printed georgette and her hat the wide umbrella variety. Miss Betty Barrall, in the Augustus P. Goodwin box, was piquant in rose printed silk and wide black hat. Miss Mary Louise Almy's floppy hat was of black, and so was Miss Beatrice Howell's, and both these attractive girls wore bright print frocks.

THERE WAS AN INTERESTING (AND INTERESTED) GROUP IN the Charles Sumner Bird box. It included Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird (stately matron and leader of certain political factions) and that North Shore figure of such prominence in the hunt world, "Uncle Bud" Appleton. James Appleton, Myopia M. F. H., was, of course, on hand for the races. There's hardly an affair of the sort hereabouts missed by the veteran huntsman. Great was the Appleton, Tuckerman and Bird rejoicing when "Amber Bead" carried off second in the Eastern Dog Club Steeplechase. "Miss Beetles," the owner, is the racing name under which Mrs. Tuckerman and Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Jr., enter this horse.

ANOTHER WIN THAT DELIGHTED LOCAL SOCIETY WAS "Upsal's" first in the Country Club Grand Annual Steeplechase. "Upsal" belongs to Bayard Warren and has figured brilliantly in several race meets. Mrs. Sumner Pingree (Mary Weld) was one of the privileged "owners" of fine horseflesh at the races. Mrs. Pingree's interest is twofold, for Mr. Pingree as a rule rides the Pingree entries. Mrs. Charles Goddard Weld, Mrs. Pingree's mother, had Mrs. Rodman Paul Snelling in her box. Mrs. Thomas Lindsay had the Ronald Lymans in her box. Mrs. Lindsay was in printed chiffon and Mrs. Lyman in a creation of turquoise blue and black.

REJOICING IN THE LOCAL SET FOLLOWED JOHN R. MACOMBER'S win of the Quansett with Crystallite. It is at Raceland today that the horsey fraternity gathers as guests of Mr. Macomber for an interesting afternoon of racing, royally planned to wind up three splendid days. Certainly the good old days of the "Country Club" are revived in full measure. And the sporting set will have its fill of its chief and favorite diversion, the racing of fine horseflesh.

LOVE OF JUDD QUESTIONED BY RUTH

CHAPTER 22

By RUTH BROWN SNYDER

Copyright, 1927, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

A LETTER purporting to have been written by Judd Gray to a man friend, published in a New York daily (Mirror) and seemingly bona fide, has him say:

"I did want to save her (meaning me) for I had idolized her."

A moment later he says:

QUESTIONS "BREAK."

"There is much that is untold and I pray always will be, but she knows. It would not help anyway. If I could only undo that which is already done.... what wouldn't I do to restore that life that was so brutally taken?"

Note the "that was so brutally taken"—isn't it reminiscent of his testimony on the stand against me? Not "the life I so brutally took" or even "the life we so brutally took," if he wants to stand by all his perjury.

Yet he has the indecency to write, further:

"It was a dishonorable thing to do in the eyes of the world, perhaps, not to take all the blame. But I am not the rat that I was called, old man, for I gave her every break I could."

He says he gave me every break he could—he did:—every break HE could:

He says there is much untold. I should think he would. "But she knows." How well, as he sits here in the same prison with me, under the same sentence of death, he knows I know.

And so he idolized me.

WOULD QUIZ JUDD.

That is the truth. I have tried to tell it here again and again. I did not emphasize it on the stand, for my purpose was not to send Judd Gray to death. But it is my best defense—that is the "motive" that his lawyers and the State were constantly harping after and claiming they couldn't explain.

He idolized me, he says. That means he sinned because he loved me. Why didn't he say so before?

I have claimed again and again that Judd loved me so much that he was fiendishly jealous of my husband, and that the temptation to do away with him consumed him. Isn't that a much more logical answer to the charge than that I had him "hypnotized."

I should like to cross-examine him on that word idolize, as they cross-examined me, tore me wide open, harrassed and harangued until I didn't know what I was answering.

I could take him back over some hours, some speeches and some acts of his, he having by that word "opened that line of examination," as they say in trial-talk.

An Open Letter to MR JAMES JACKSON

(Former State Treasurer of Massachusetts)

Dear Mr. Jackson:

As a banker, and as an experienced custodian of public funds, you must have often noticed one of the wisest proverbs of wise King Solomon, who said:

"The rich man's wealth is his strong city: the destruction of the poor is their poverty."

Poor people are too often overcharged for the necessities of life. Instead of being able to buy clothes, furniture, house furnishings and other necessities at cash prices, they are too often required to pay very high rates of interest on the so-called "Easy Payment System."

Gilchrist's announced last month a helpful, new method of charge accounts for people of limited incomes, called

THE GILCHRIST PLAN

The customer can buy whatever is wanted, at cash prices, from Gilchrist's large stocks. A convenient Gilchrist Pass Book is issued when the first purchase and small deposit is made. Bills can be paid weekly, fortnightly or monthly, to suit the customer's income dates.

Knowing your interest in all public-minded efforts to protect people against overcharges, we venture to hope that The Gilchrist Plan will receive your support. Mr. Charles W. Harvey, at Gilchrist's, will [illegible] details on request.

How Great the Power of Love!

In the hard-hitting Stone Age, a marriageable gentleman amiably slugged his bride-to-be before carrying her home. In the new Olympia film, the eminent Thespian, Babe Ruth, selects his inamorata by tenderly allocating a foul fly to the exact center of her eye.

STAGE AND SCREEN

Art Is Long—and Very Sharp.

Required to follow a sheaf of wheat through a threshing machine for "a laugh" in "Barbed Wire" at the "Met," Clyde Cook explains that entering from the wheat end and emerging at the straw delivery was not at all difficult; "it was what happened in the interim."

NEW MARION DAVIES PRODUCTION STARTS ENGAGEMENT AT LOEW'S STATE MONDAY

A STENOGRAPHIC REPORT. As the smart little typist heroine, "Tillie the Toiler," Marion Davies gives Matt Moore, as Mac, an earful and an eyeful. The film starts Monday at Loew's State.

A MAN'S MAN. In "The King of Kings" at the Tremont, little Mark, played by Mickey Moore (right), exhorts Simon the Cyrenian (William Boyd), to use his powerful shoulders to help carry the Cross of the afflicted Master. This scene is one of the most impressive in this film of the Crucified Christ.

TOKENS OF TOKIO. In the musical Japan of operetta, such as "Cherry Blossoms" at the Wilbur, there is always the little geisha girl, and the handsome American boy, who simply can't do without each other. Howard Marsh and Helen Nord are the present incumbents.

IT'S TOASTED! Nothing brings out the dramatic flavor quite like "Kongo," the heat-treated, hash-browned thriller of the tropics, now broiling the boards at the Gayety. Here you have Blanche Elliott and Charles Middleton "in character."

DRAMA ACCORDING TO FAHRENHEIT

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

TO those who like their drama red hot—scorching and sizzling—it would appear that the theatre rises in temperature with the changing seasons. Which is reason enough, you might say, for Mr. Tom Henry's coaxing Gayety to tempt the fates of an advancing Summer with the exceedingly tropical "Kongo," perhaps the most passionately torrid little play of this or seven other yawning seasons. In any event, if we are to continue with low thermometers when they should be rising, a sun-baked drama may not be amiss.

SINCE the production of "White Cargo" there have been many excursions into the tropics by ambitious playwrights. The times have been turned into open season for theatrical flings at the jungle, with each venture, you may be sure, just a bit warmer than its predecessor. We have had about every available spot in equatorial regions taken in hand, skipping neither the hot Pacific islands nor the burning stretches of Africa. And it has been made more than evident that the playgoer prefers heavy seasoning in his fare, for these artistic explorations have not only caught public fancy, but they have turned in handsome profits as well.

WITH "Kongo" entering upon a second week at the Gayety there will still be a full measure of spice for the theatre lover willing to take strong medicine for Summer pastime instead of the usual offerings in girls, legs and lingerie. There is none of this in "Kongo," though the anguished natives manage to get along with no more raiment than one might discover in a smart Broadway musical show before our own good guardian of public morals, John Casey, drives the girls to shirt waists and fleshings for home treatment.

LIKE all plays of jungle or tropical wastes, the people who inhabit "Kongo" are pretty mad. Virtue is a scarce article for the better part of the story, but even in their sinning the people have the saving grace of being interesting. "Kongo" is a perfect picture of unclarified misery, softened by a few flights of very welcome comedy. For color you have African natives at their worst and white men reeking with vengeance. Not a likely prospect unless you demand a real-hardened drama. That our own natives have a liking for "Kongo" is apparent by its swelling coffers. Earlier in the year the play held the stage at the Gayety for a week at the largest receipts of the season.

WHAT'S WHAT

With Shows

REMAINING

"Twinkle Twinkle" at the Colonial. (Second week.) If you like to feel glad and still enjoy the sight of pretty girls, here's your medicine.

"Cherry Blossoms" at the Wilbur. Oriental romance set to an intriguing score by Sigmund Romberg. The last week.

"The King of Kings" at the Tremont. (Second week.) Episodes in the life of Christ made into a fascinating, throbbing film.

"The Cat and the Canary" at the Park. (Third week.) Hair-raising melodrama, with a good, loud laugh for every shock.

* * *

"Kongo" at the Gayety. (Second week.) In which a lively love story gets all mixed up with the wild passions of the tropics.

FILM FUTURES

JUNE 25—

Louise Brooks in "Rolled Stockings" at the Metropolitan.

JUNE 26—

Milton Sills in "Framed" at the Washington Street Olympia.

Jetta Goudal in "Fighting Love" at the New Boston.

JUNE 27—

Joan Crawford in "The Taxi Dancer" at Loew's State.

Bright Forecast

RUTH SHEPLEY will talk about the weather and kindred subjects in "Fair and Warmer," new play at the St. James.

'FAIR, WARMER' AT ST. JAMES

"Fair and Warmer," a light, frothy comedy, with Walter Gilbert, Houston Richards, Edith Speare and Ruth Shepley in the leading roles, will be presented next week by the Keith-Albee stock company at the St. James.

The story concerns two married couples. One of the husbands tells his wife "white lies" about his evenings out, insisting that he goes to the lodge, or to meetings of boards of directors, and other similar but threadbare stories to account for his absences.

The other husband likes to stay at home and read. The wives of the two men are as different as their two husbands. The plot hinges around the attempt of the worldly-wise husband to instruct the domestic husband in the art of getting out into the world.

BOWDOIN BILL

The feature of next week's entertainment at the Bowdoin Square is the Cosmopolitan production, "The Understanding Heart," with Joan Crawford and Francis X. Bushman in the chief roles. The companion piece is "Heaven on Earth," with Renee Adoree and Conrad Nagel. A bill of vaudeville is also given.

NORUMBEGA BILL

"The Flying Sullivans," aerialists, have been engaged for another week at Norumbega Park.

The other attractions at the park are now in full blast. The zoo is a magnet, the theatre is popular and the various midway attractions are inviting to young and old.

Caricatures and Characteristics

By MARION DAVIES

Star of "Tillie the Toiler" at Loew's State

Caricatures as we see them in the daily papers defy all the laws of human anatomy. The features of the subjects in the comic strips are usually a combination of facial expressions and features which nature would hardly dare to inflict upon a single human being. As a result, it is impossible to find types which look exactly like the caricatures. Instead of wasting time in search for types which do not exist, persons were selected whose features, through somewhat general resemblance, would permit a caricature similar to the character sought. Thus the cast members, playing these roles, look very little like the caricatures, but if they were drawn in caricature the pictures would be almost identical.

Marion Davies

Cartoons are picturizations of human characteristics, exaggerated to a degree that will emphasize them and make them readily recognizable.

In a well drawn cartoon, such as Russ Westover's "Tillie, the Toiler," on which my new picture is based, all action is logical—and natural. Tillie may do things the average person would not do. But it cannot be said she does things WE would not feel like doing under the same circumstances.

If you will notice caricatures of children you will see them doing things which are natural to children, because children are impulsive, governed by no rules of propriety. They say what they think and act as they feel. In all things they are human. They have not yet begun to comply with rules of etiquette nor are they trying to live up to certain standards set by society.

It is true that the character of "Tillie" is not that of the average stenographer. But it is the character of what many young girls are at heart—frivolous, yet lovable and trustworthy. They are not yet ready to face seriously the problems of life.

Studied for Opera Before Films Gobbled Him Up

Ramon Novarro who plays the Spanish hero in "Lovers," new Spanish drama at the Orpheum, is one of the most versatile stars in pictures. Born in Durango, Mexico, he studied for grand opera, then became an actor and dancer. He scored a hit with the Marion Morgan dancers in vaudeville, then made his first screen hit in "The Lover's Oath," adapted from Omar Khayyam. Successes in "The Prisoner of Zenda," "Trifling Women," "Scaramouche," "The Arab" and others followed, leading to the title role in "Ben Hur."

Mystery Show Fools 'Em All, Nobody Guesses Right

Careful observation on the part of the producers of "The Cat and the Canary" at the Park indicates that not one in a thousand has the slightest clue to the identity of the real villain until the end of the play. That this is no reflection on the mentality of average audiences is proved by the fact that no keen-minded a detective as William A. Pinkerton admitted that the solution came as a complete surprise to him. For this, credit must be given to John Willard, the author, as doing something beyond mere play writing.

CALVARY SET REPRODUCED BY MASTER

Wilfred Buckland, who in the palmy days of the legitimate stage was famous for his beautiful productions of classical dramas, reproduced the scene of Calvary for the De Mille Biblical film, "The King of Kings," at the Tremont.

This reproduction of Golgotha or Calvary is said to be the largest exterior ever photographed.

The whole constituted an enterprise of the highest skill, historical knowledge, and use of technical resource. From the top of Golgotha the towers and turrets of Zion can be seen across the intervening valley. Looking the other way, the ascent to the summit is difficult, ravine-threaded, and cluttered with boulders. Several thousand persons, of all ranks of society, perched on the rocks or found footing in the crannelos to see the sentences carried out. When the earthquake shook and rent the hill and the hurricane and lightning broke out of a darkened sky, the panic-stricken spectators fled in every direction.

Claims Editor Is Ideal Picture Director

Newspaper work is the ideal training for motion picture makers, according to Erich Pommer, co-producer with Rowland V. Lee of "Barbed Wire," Pola Negri's newest starring vehicle at the Metropolitan, and producer of some of the most remarkable pictures in screen history.

Pommer maintains that the newspaper editor would make the ideal director and the newspaper reporter the best of cameramen.

"The able editor and the good reporter always want to know who, what, where, when and why, and they insist on accuracy—faithful presentation of the facts. They are always striving for original methods of treatment; to 'play up' the story in the most attractive and unique manner possible. And also, they are always there when the accident happens, when the big news breaks. They never expect the accident to come to them.

PETERSON AT STATE

Birge Peterson, well known organist, has been added to the staff at the State and starts his week as featured soloist. He comes to Boston after a wide, vast experience in the country's leading cities, and is one of Marcus Loew's headline organ virtuosi.

A SLEUTH FORSOOTH

JOE E. BROWN, sketched by Charlie Schmidt, in his character of comic detective—dear the typewriter!—comic detective in that kickful concoction, "Twinkle Twinkle," now at the Colonial.

Siren in Silk

MADGE BELLAMY is the "hose who" in "Ankles Preferred," a silk stocking film story at the New Boston.

JUNGLE FILM SHOWING AT FENWAY

The motion picture is put to work for another purpose besides pleasant entertainment in "Chang," the new feature starting today at the Fenway.

"Chang" is a picture made as far away from the studio as its producers could get. The jungle of Siam and Indo-China is the locale; natives and animals of the region are its actors, and Old Sol—hot and brilliant—furnished the Klieg lights.

The big difference in "Chang" from other movies is that it is real. The scientists, Merian Cooper and Ernest Schodesack, were determined to find out just how a human being fought for life in the jungle.

Although man is still the lord of the earth, he is a puny foe for a band of charging elephants, a dozen roaring lions, the flood waters of swollen rivers.

Armed with their camera and the superior intelligence of the white man, Cooper and Schodesack searched for a spot on the globe where man still battled with his primitive foes. They found it in northern Siam, and "Chang" is the result of their investigations. The film is said by the New York critics to be the most thrilling document yet given to the screen.

Preference for Brunettie in Leatrice Joy Film

Gentlemen don't prefer blondes, Rougimerlocks love brunettes. And to prove it Leatrice Joy's latest DeMille starring production "Vanity," which starts today at the Modern and Beacon, demonstrates that those who have a contrary view are all wrong.

Miss Joy has returned to strong drama under the direction of Donald Crisp in this picture, and her famous "bob" is ones more seen. Gorgeous clothes, tense situations and vivid cross sections of life combine to make this an absorbing picture. The theme deals with the difficulty of ego when confronted by stark fundamentals.

by Chester DeVonde and Kilbourn Gordon; with CHARLES B. MIDDLETON and LEORA SPELLMAN

Oh, Where Are the Red Heads!

Victor Hyde, strolling producer of Mr. Loew's Orpheum Frolics, rises to ask what has become of all the girls with red hair. He insists they are becoming fewer and fewer and mentions Louise Cook, of somewhere in Boston, as the only blazing beauty he could find.

STAGE AND SCREEN

Puts Lost Tribes on the Run.

Chester De Vonde, one of the authors of "Kongo," now at the Gayety, gathered much of the material for his play while on an expedition into the African jungles. Mr. De Vonde's trip was undertaken for scientific purposes only; writing a play was just a later notion.

MOODS AND MODES OF MAN AND MAID AS REFLECTED IN THE NEW WEEK'S CINEMA

THE SEASON'S GREETINGS are earnestly extended to Pola Negri by Clive Brook in the war drama, "Barbed Wire," at the Metropolitan. Beyond that there is very little to say concerning either, because Mr. Brook seems determined to hold this pose for some time.

BABE'S GONE A-FILMING. Yes, sir, Mr. George Herman Ruth, for 'tis none other than he, has gone completely Hollywood. Here is the large bambino endeavoring to absorb a little eating tobacco. Anna Q. Nilsson restrains him in "When Babe Comes Home" at the Olympia, Scollay and Central.

COWBOY FINDING MISPLACED COWLICK. A gentle pastime for Tom Mix, but you can hardly blame him when the lady is Marjorie Daw. For further details see "Outlaws of Red River." (Modern and Beacon.)

AND OVER HERE we have Ramon Novarro and Alice Terry buried in thought and conversation in "Lovers," the film that shows how naughty it is to talk about the neighbors. See it for yourself at the Orpheum next week.

FILM FARE FOR NEW WEEK

LOEW'S STATE—Marion Davies in "Tillie the Toiler" (first run), based on the Russ Westover newspaper cartoon feature, screen play by A. P. Younger. Romantic comedy of a little stenographer, of her troubles and joys at home and in "the office." The other comic strip characters are taken by Matt Moore as Mac, Ralph Forbes as Penny Fish, George Fawcett as Mr. Simpkins and George K. Arthur as Mr. Whipple. Hobart Henley directed. A Cosmopolitan production. On stage Phil Spitalny and band.

METROPOLITAN—(Starting today) Pola Negri in "Barbed Wire" (first run) adapted from Hall Caine's "The Woman of Knockaloe." Wartime drama of a prison camp in France, showing the futility of hatred. Others in the cast are Clive Brook, Gustave Von Seyffertitz, Elnar Hansen, Claude Gillingwater and Clyde Cook. Erich Pommer supervised, Rowland V. Lee directed. A Paramount picture. On stage, Gene Rodemich in "Gypsy Land" and John Murray Anderson's "Winter Nights."

OLYMPIA, SCOLLAY, CENTRAL—(Starting today) Babe Ruth in "When Babe Comes Home" (first run), adapted from the Gerald Beaumont story, "Said With Soap." Comedy drama involving thrills of the diamond, plug tobacco and romance. Others in the cast are Anna Q. Nilsson, Louise Fazenda, Ethel Shannon and Arthur Stone. Ted Wilde directed. A First National picture. Also vaudeville.

FENWAY—(Starting today) "Chang" (first run), scientific film of stark realism in the jungle. The production was conceived, photographed and directed by Merian Cooper and Ernest Schoedesack. The actors are the natives and animals of Northern Siam and Indo China. The film's purpose is to show man's terrific struggle with the beasts in a territory where there still exists such a problem. A Paramount picture.

MODERN AND BEACON—(Starting today) Leatrice Joy in "Vanity" (first run), screen play by Douglas Doty. Romantic drama. Cast includes Charles Ray and Alan Hale. Donald Crisp directed. A Producers' picture. Also Tom Mix in "Outlaws of Red River" (first run), based on Gerald Beaumont's story, "The Phantom Falcon." Others are Marjorie Daw and Francis McDonald. Lew Seiler directed. A William Fox picture. Also a new Vitaphone program.

NEW BOSTON—(Starting tomorrow) Madge Bellamy in "Ankles Preferred" (first run), story of a girl whose feet were her misfortune. Others in the cast are Lawrence Gray, Allan Forrest and J. Farrell McDonald. J. G. Blystone directed. A William Fox picture. Also vaudeville.

Changes in Vaudeville

LOEW'S ORPHEUM—The feature of the bill is the Fourth Edition Local Amateur Frolics, with fifty Greater Boston boys and girls, directed and staged by Victor Hyde; other acts are Joe Morris and Flo Campbell in the skit, "Any Apartment"; Browning and Bracken, "Southern Pals"; Phil Dolan and Eleanor Gale in song numbers; Bordner and Boyer in acrobatics. The feature photoplay is "Lovers" with Ramon Novarro and Alice Terry.

B. F. KEITH'S—Miss Patricola, in new songs and characters; Arthur Aylsworth and company in the comedy playlet, "Envy"; Al. K. Hall, the clown comedian, in "The Sap at the Beach"; Edwin George, juggler, in "A comedy of Errors"; Chris Richards, eccentric comedian; Morton Downey, baritone, Hayes, Marsh and Hayes in a song and dance revue, and others.

SOVIETS DEMAND BERLIN EXPLAIN ABOUT 'WARNING'

Berlin, June 18 (I.N.S.).—The Russian government, through its Berlin legation, has called upon the German government for an explanation of the semi-official announcements in the German press that Germany had warned Russia of the Powers' insistence that the foreign and domestic policies of Russia be moderated.

The Russians insist they received these warnings only through the press. The German Foreign Office on the other hand states that friendly warning was given to Russia.

HUB FLIER TO MAKE FLIGHT TO HAWAII

Washington, June 18 (A.P.).—The Army Air Corps is striving to be first in going the Pacific Ocean between San Francisco and Honolulu in a non-stop airplane flight.

After months of preparation, shrouded in secrecy, two crack army fliers are now piloting a giant tri-motored Fokker monoplane across the continent to San Diego, Cal., for final grooming and testing of the machine and navigation instruments for the hop. Final authorization of the flight by the War Department depends on the result of these tests.

If they are successful the hop-off on the 2,360-mile flight will be made not later than July 15, from March Field, San Francisco. First Lieutenant Maitland will be accompanied by First Lieutenant Albert F. Hegenberger, formerly of Boston, as assistant pilot and navigator.

The flight has been an army project of long standing. Assistant Secretary Davison, in charge of army aeronautics, declared, and was motivated by the offers of prizes for the trip, for army fliers would not be eligible to receive awards if it was successful.

SCORES ENTER PERFECT FOOT COMPETITION

Possessors of pretty feet already have begun to step into the Boston Evening American's Perfect Foot Contest by the score.

Hardly had the ink dried on the announcement of the quest for New England's perfect feminine foot than maids and matrons too, in all seven States began to appraise their ankles and feet.

Some have dispatched a photograph of their "tootsies" to the Perfect Foot Contest Editor. Others have written their intention of entering the competition as soon as they have secured the necessary photograph of their nether limbs.

There is only one rule for the contest. It is simply this: send a clean cut photograph of your feet to the contest editor, with your name and address legibly written.

CLOSES JUNE 30.

The contest will close June 30. Then competent judges whose lifelong study of the anatomy of the foot has made their judgment authoritative will devote long hours to the selection of New England's perfect feet from among the thousands of photographs that will have been sent to them.

Beauty of face or limb will not be factors in the Perfect Foot Contest.

Every photograph will be studied carefully and 99 of the best looking feet will be retained in the first elimination by the judges.

Further study will reduce these 99 to 50 and the 50 to the final 25, to all of whom will be given a worthwhile prize.

Second prize in the contest will be $25 in cash and a charming pair of footwear, stylish, roomy Sukkem pumps deftly trimmed in alligator, a superb combination of New England shoe making art with Paris chicness.

A third prize will consist of $15 in cash and a chic pair of the smartest and most fashionable white kid shoes, a perfectly patterned pair of the latest mode for Summer.

Fourth prize will be $10 in cash and an order on a prominent Boston shoe retailer or New England manufacturer for a fashionable pair of the finest quality shoes.

ATTRACTIVE AWARDS.

The fifth to 25th prizes will all consist of orders on prominent Boston retailers for a fashionable pair of shoes of the finest quality.

In every instance the shoes will be given to the winners perfect, thus assuring perfection of both style and fit.

Pictures of entrants will be shown from day to day in the Boston Evening American.

Send your picture in today and follow the news of the contest in the Boston Evening American daily.

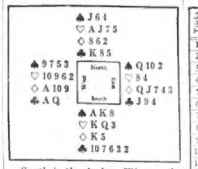
HAND NO. 95



South is the dealer. What is the proper bidding and play?

In the next issue Mr. Whitehead will explain the salient points in the bidding and play of the above hand. Fill out your own chart and compare it with his method.

These hands must not be bid or played "Double Dummy," i. e., as though all four hands were exposed.

Thursday's Hand as Played by Mr. Whitehead

Salient Points of the Bidding

North quite properly takes out South's Club bid with one Diamond rather than with No Trump, although had he bid No Trump, the final result would have been the same, as in either case, South will show his Spade suit and the hand will be played with Spades as Trump. This normal result of the bidding is unfortunate for North and South, as they can readily go game at No Trump and do not make game at Spades against perfect defense.

Salient Points of the Play

Trick 4. This is one of the few hands with which top lead of a card which permits the Declarer to trump in one hand and discard in the other is justified, because Declarer's discard is not apt to result in any advantage, since it must be in one of the partnership suits, and also because of West's secondary strength in trumps. South trumps the fourth Heart lead in his own hand instead of in Dummy in order to preserve the three trumps in Dummy, as his obvious play is to attempt to establish the Diamond suit, extending one of the adverse trump honors on the first lead of trumps, he cannot risk the loss of game by playing low in Dummy, especially where gain could not well be foreseen.

HIT BY TROLLEY WHILE QUIETING HIS HORSE

While trying to quiet a frightened horse, Frank Corkum of Rock Valley avenue, Everett, was struck by an inbound trolley car at Broadway and Reed avenue, Everett, today. He was taken to Massachusetts General Hospital, where his name is on the danger list.

The horse, attached to a milk wagon which Corkum was driving, was cut and bruised in the collision. The wagon was wrecked.

DISABLED ENGINE DELAYS NEW HAVEN PASSENGERS

Hundreds of passengers on the New Haven Railroad train due in Boston from Plymouth at 8:34 a. m. today were delayed for nearly an hour by a disabled engine which was replaced by another at South Hanson. The engine hauling the passenger train was said to have been a freight engine. It broke down at Halifax and again at Monponsett.

U. S. IN GRIP OF CORRUPTION, SAYS REED

Johnson City, Tenn., June 18 (A.P.)—Appealing for a return to the old time fundamentals of government, Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, declared today before the Tennessee Bar Association that the time had come when the patriotic people of the country should rise up and drive out the "leprosy of corruption" which has spread throughout the nation's capital.

The Missouri senator, who was chairman of the Senate's campaign funds investigating committee, charged that not one-tenth of the corruption had been exposed.

"Indeed, it has already proceeded so far that there is scarcely an activity of life from the rearing of babies to the massing of armies which is not now in some degree subject to the surveillance of government officers, agents, spies, and courts," he continued. "If the march toward centralization be not soon arrested, entire government might as well cease to exist."

MARION DAVIES
in Tillie The Toiler

NEXT MONDAY

Tillie the Toiler arrives in town Monday. There'll be a great welcome for Tillie. Everybody who has laughed at her antics in the papers will want to see her in the movies. She is bringing all her pals, too—Mac, Simpkins and the rest.

Tillie is New York's most celebrated toiler. She is beautiful, but she is not dumb. She never lets business interfere with pleasure—not even when the big boss speaks.

Marion Davies plays Tillie. That means a riot of fun.

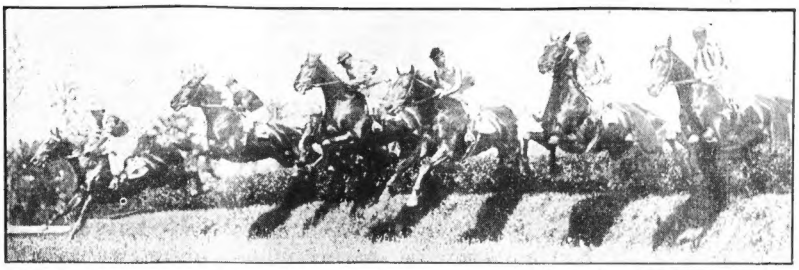
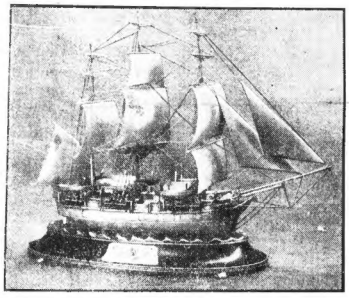
PIPE THE DUKE! Messrs. Mickey Walker and Jack Kearns at Hampton Court, London. Mickey is getting ready for a bout with Tommy Milligan—but just lay your eyes on that swagger outfit! (I.N.R. photo.)



"GOOD AND PLENTY." That's not only the name of this handicap race at Belmont, but it also describes this fine I. N. R. photo. The horses are all good an d there are plenty of them. They're all clearing the first barrier together. Brantome, Crawford up, third from the right, led them home at the finish.

DON'T BE SCHALKED, but the Chicago White Sox are in second place and sitting pretty, due to the efforts of their new manager, the famous and veteran catcher.

FROM PHILADELPHIA came Mrs. Roland Barlow to play on the Quaker City's Griscom Cup golf team and in the Women's Eastern championships, both of which matches were played at Belmont Springs.



PRIZE TROPHY. This exact replica of an old whaler will be given to the winner of the race for outboard motors in the Speed Boat Regatta to be held in Dorchester Bay this week end.

GIRL TRACK STARS IN TITLE MEET

Four N. E. A. A. A. U. Champions to Be Crowned at Franklin Field Tomorrow

National champions and record holders will attempt to win New England A. A. U. titles in the four championship events being put on in the women's track meet Sunday afternoon at Franklin Field.

The championship events on the program are the 50 yards dash, running broad jump, eight pounds shot put and baseball throw. Six other open events will complete the program.

Kathrine Mearls, national indoor standing broad jump champion, is favored to win the New England running broad jump title. She will also compete in the 50 yards dash. In the latter event, Miss Mearls will have to beat Phylis Kennedy of the Malden A. C., if she is to carry off the title.

In the shot-put Rena McDonald of the Boston Swimming Association is the outstanding competitor. She holds the national indoor championship in this event. May Macgill is another outstanding performer entered in the shot-put.

Eleanor Churchill, holder of the American record for throwing the baseball, will compete in that event in Sunday's meet.

The other events on the program are the javelin throw, 100-yard dash handicap, 220-yard dash, 50-yard dash for novices, high jump and relay race. The relay entry includes the Boston Swimming Club, Women's Swimming Club of Brookline and the Malden A. C.

Margret Proctor, the New England champion, is to compete in the javelin, while Mabel Morrissey will start from scratch in the 100-yard dash.

Mildred Wiley, the national indoor champion, and Maude Tompkins, the New England title-holder, will compete in the running high jump. Thirty entries have been received for the 50-yard dash for novices.

The meet is being put on by the Boston Park Department. It is to start at 2 o'clock.

TRIO OF HUB GIRL ATHLETES WITH TITLE ASPIRATIONS

MILDRED WILEY of Wollaston who hopes to win the N. E. A. A. A. U. high jump title in the meet at Franklin Field tomorrow.

KATHERINE MEARLS of South Boston, one of the greatest girl athletes in the country will seek the broad jump championship.

RENA MacDONALD versatile Boston Swimming Association star who will defend her New England shot put title.

MAD BULL IS LEADING PACK

Benbow Resort, Cal., June 18 (A.P.)—Mad Bull, the Karook Indian leading in the 480-mile marathon run from San Francisco to Grant's Pass, Oregon, arrived here last night, a distance of 210 miles from the starting point, after having covered the 73 miles from Willits in twenty-four hours.

Cochee and Melika, two of the Zuni runners, were approximately nine miles behind the leader, but the Zunis planned to continue while Mad Bull was to rest here.

Jamon, the other Zuni entrant and the winner of the $100 prize for being the first to arrive at San Rafael, is being taken from Cloverdale to Coolidge Park, south of here, for medical examination.

If he is pronounced fit he will be taken back to Cloverdale to continue the race, approximately two days behind the rest of the field.

Eleven Indians started in the race from San Francisco, Tuesday morning.

JOE DUNDEE TO FIGHT UNDER FUGAZY COLORS

Baltimore, June 18 (A.P.)—Denying published reports that Joe Dundee would not defend his world's championship welterweight title this Summer, Dundee's manager, Max Waxman, said today the boxer would meet the best opponent available under the direction of Humbert Fugazy, New York boxing promoter.

The fighters Waxman named as "suitable opponents" included Ace Hudkins, Sergeant Sammy Baker, who recently defeated Hudkins; Tommy Freeman, Jack McVey and "Mushy" Callahan.

PAT CONCANNON GOES TO LEWISTON CLUB

Portland, Me., June 18 (A.P.)—Manager Duffy Lewis of the Portland New England League baseball team today announced that he had sent Third Baseman Patrick Concannon to the Lewiston club under an optional agreement containing a 48-hour recall clause. Concannon joined Lewiston today.

Bouts Last Night

Chicago—Johnny Hill, Philippines, defeated Charley Goodman, Brooklyn, 10. Haakon Hansen, Norway, scored a technical knockout over Johnny Murphy, Chicago, 4. Norman Prewe, Chicago, beat Larry Coleman, St. Paul, 1.

Detroit—Tiger Flowers, outpointed Bob Sage, Detroit, 10.

HIGH SCHOOL RELAY TEAMS IN TITLE MEET

Fitchburg, June 18.—The first annual relay championship of the Massachusetts high schools is being held here today.

Twenty-two schools have entered teams in the meet. That there are not more schools entered is due to the fact that the meet comes so late in the season, many of the teams having closed their season. Another year the meet will receive an earlier date on the school boy track schedule.

The program is as follows:

For schools with an enrollment of 100 or less — 440 yards relay, each competitor to run 110 yards; 880 yards relay, each competitor to run 220 yards.

For schools with an enrollment of from 100 to 500—440 yards relay, 880 yards relay, and mile relay, each competitor to run 440 yards.

For schools with an enrollment of 500 to 1000—440 yards relay, 880 yards relay, mile relay and two-mile relay, each competitor to run 880 yards.

For schools with an enrollment of more than 1000—440 yards relay, 880 yards relay, mile relay and two-mile relay.

Special event—Two and one-half mile shuffle race, 10 competitors on a team: First four men run 110 yards; second two competitors run 220 yards; third two to run 440 yards last two to run 1320 yards.

'LINDY NIGHT' AT REVERE

Tonight the Revere cycle track is expected to hold the largest crowd in its history, when the sport of cycling pays tribute to Colonel Lindbergh.

In honor of "Lindy's" historic flight, Manager Butler is calling the feature contest the Transatlantic Cup Race. He has donated a silver cup to be awarded the winner.

Mayor Malcolm Nichols will fire the gun sending the riders on their one-hour journey, and will also present the trophy to the winner.

Six of the world's leading paced riders have been selected to compete. They are George Chapman, Victor Hopkins, Charles Jaeger, Frankie Keenan, Dan Picione and Francesco Zucchetti.

Action galore should be in store for the bike fans when this sextet pedal into action behind their sputtering motors.

Last week's race provided plenty of thrills but tonight's contest for the silver trophy should teem with action.

As a supporting feature Manager Butler will present the world's greatest 6-day cyclist Reggie McNamara. He will oppose Harris Horder, the Australian in a three heat sprint.

JOHNNY BELL TO RACE IN SIX COUNTRIES

John D. Bell, student coach of the St. Bonaventure College track team and holder of the New York State intercollegiate two-mile and Niagara A. A. U. cross-country championships, plans an athletic trip through Europe from July to September that will include ten races in six countries. He will leave on the President Harding on June 22, begin his itinerary at Rotterdam on July 3 with a 5,000-metre race and end it at Rome, August 28 to September 4, when he will take part in the 3,000, 5,000, and 10,0000-metre races in the university world championships.

Though such athletic jaunts during this pre-Olympic year have been officially frowned upon by the Amateur Athletic Union the veteran Brooklyn harrier, now engaged in his fourteenth year of cinderpath competition, managed to obtain the necessary permit from the governing body. He had arranged to make the trip aboard with a Franciscan church party on a pilgrimage to Assisi, and when he explained to William C. Prout, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the A. A. U., his plans for competing in various cities aboard before joining his church party in Rome, the permit was granted.

Johnny Bell has made nine trips to Europe, including two as a soldier, and on three of these he engaged in competition in England and on the Continent. His average for his European engagements is a second place as he figures it. One of the high lights of his present trip will be a match race with J. J. Ryan, the Irish champion, at two or three miles, at the games of the Dublin Metropolitan Police on July 30. He will compete in Holland, England, Ireland, France, Germany and Italy.

His program is as follows: 5,000 meter race at Rotterdam on July 3; 3,000 meter race at Paris on July 9; 5,000 meter race at Paris on July 14 (Bastile Day); two-mile steeplechase or four mile flat race at Stamford Bridge, England, on July 23; two or three-mile match with J. J. Ryan at Dublin on July 30; two-mile race at Balbriggan, Ireland, on August 7; 5,000 meter race at Duisburg, Germany, on August 14 (where he took second place to Fred Wachsmuth, two years ago); 3,000, 5,000 and 10,000 meter races at the intercollegiate Olympics at Rome on August 28 to September 4.

At Rome Bell expects to meet in the games a compatriot or two who may be traveling through Italy at the time. In some of the other cities he may cross the path of Harry Hinkel, of the New York A. C., the metropolitan and national three-mile walking champion, who is also considering a trip to Europe for competition after he defends his national title at Lincoln, Neb., on July 2.

WEISSMULLER SETS UP ANOTHER RECORD

Chicago, June 18 (A.P.)—Johnny Weissmuller of the Illinois Athletic Club established a new record for the 300-yard swim in a seventy-five-foot tank last night. He swam the distance in 3:07 4-5. The old record was 3:14.

KID KAPLAN RETURNS $1500 TO CHARITY

New York, June 18 (A.P.)—There was a stir in fighting camps today when it was noised abroad that participants in the boxing show at the Polo Grounds are expected to give up part of their purses to the cause of the Catholic Boys Clubs.

When the fighters were paid off all that remained for charity was a net loss of $2,000, declared the sponsors of the show. Net receipts fell about $100,000 short of the $250,000 expected.

Louis (Kid) Kaplan, "the Meriden Buzz-saw," is named as the boxer who made the first pugilistic contribution by accepting but $6,000 of his $7,500.

Other fighters and their managers have been invited to turn in contributions at the office of the boxing commission Monday.

Most highly paid of the combatants were Sid Terris and Ruby Goldstein, the Ghetto boys who "worked" but one minute, forty-seven seconds before the knocking out of Ruby permitted both to knock off.

Terris is said to have received $32,500 for his bit; Goldstein, $22,500; Ace Hudkins, $15,000; Sammy Baker, $10,000; Billy Petrolle, $8,000; Billy Wallace, $7,500; Jack Fields, $7,500; Kaplan, $6,000, and principals in the two preliminaries about $1,000.

Feeling that in most of the charity boxing shows the boxers alone benefit, sponsors of the Kiddie Camp Fund bouts scheduled for the Queensboro Stadium July 12 have cancelled the show.

The Old Refrain, "Tilden Wins Again"

Manchester, Eng., June 18 (A.P.)—William T. Tilden and Francis T. Hunter, Americans, made a clean sweep of their inter-country tennis tournament against English stars by taking the two final singles matches today.

Tilden defeated Edward Higgs 6—4, 6—3, 6—2, while Hunter vanquished D. M. Greig.

On Thursday, the opening day, Hunter defeated Higgs and Tilden beat Greig. Yesterday the Americans took the doubles from G. R. H. Crole-Rees and C. G. Eames in straight sets.

"ONE EYE" CONNOLLY OFF FOR EUROPE

New York, June 18 (A.P.)—"One-Eyed" Connelly, whose mission in life is getting in without paying, was sitting contentedly in a third class berth when the Cunarder Scythia sailed today, and as he fondled a nickel given him 20 years ago by John D. Rockefeller, he told reporters he was on his way to "crash into" the Walker-Milligan bout in London June 30.

Scene of Eastern Horse Show Shifts to Raceland

The Eastern Horse Club racing scene shifts today from Clyde Park at the Country Club to John R. Macomber's estate, Raceland, in Framingham. The public is invited to witness the finale of the three-day card with no admission being charged

The program at Raceland includes three steeplechases and two flat races, with virtually all of the mounts entered that appeared in the Clyde Park events.

The first race will be for juveniles, at four and a half furlongs on the flat. The second event is a 'chase for registered hunters, two and a half miles, with the Masters Plate at stake, a trophy valued at $1000 and presented by Henry G. Vaughan, M. F. H.

The two-mile Raceland Cup steeplechase, which is regarded as the feature event of the day, has drawn an entry list of sixteen horses. Maiden hunters will race two and a half miles for the Flying Horse Stakes, and the final event on the card is to be a mile and a sixteenth on the flat for three-year-olds and upward.

FIRST RACE AT 2:30.

The first race will be called at 2:30. The racing of the day should prove a mine of excitement for the spectators who journey to Framingham, as conditions at Raceland are more favorable for watching steeplechase events even than at the Country Club. Every jump is in full view.

The three-day program of this year's Eastern Horse Club meeting has thus far been marred by but one serious accident, that which occurred in the Eastern Dog Club 'chase at Clyde Park yesterday and which cost the life of the promising steeplechase mount, Horace Groom of the Justa Farm Stables and the injuring of Jockey Diamond.

The Eastern Dog Club chase was the first jumping race on the program, and Horace Groom's mishap happened just after its start. The horses, a field of nine having started, came down the hill for the water jump and cleared the barrier well bunched.

Horace Groom, was in third place and on the inside. Either Jockey Diamond failed to see the tree which was directly in his path or else he was forced over by the bunching.

One jockey yelled at him, but he failed to hear him and it probably would have availed nothing if he had. For at this point Horace Groom appeared to skid, one foreleg almost doubling, and he careened at full tilt into the tree, head-on.

JOCKEY IS THROWN.

Diamond was hurled against the tree and clear of the oncoming horses, but sustained a compound fracture of his right thigh and was unconscious when reached. Horace Groom had broken his neck and right foreleg and was dead by the time attendants arrived. Diamond was rushed to the Faulkner Hospital, where he is doing as well as could be expected.

The feature event of the Clyde Park program was the Country Club Grand Annual Steeplechase, which was won in brilliant fashion by Bayard Warren's Upsal, the outstanding horse of the meeting, due to this victory and his record-smashing performance in the Chamblet Memorial Steeplechase Wednesday.

Two Boston horses were winners yesterday, Upsal and John R. Macomber's Crystallite, both of which were repeaters from Wednesday.

One course record went, that in the Eastern Dog Club chase, the Grassland Stables' Bethany, Smoot Up, turning in a time of 3:46¼.

The Road Riders' flat race for steeplechase mounts ridden by gentlemen riders was won by Sand Rock of the Winburn Stables, with Mr. A. C. Bostwick up, in the fast time of 2:47¾.

The Philadelphia entry, Royal Duck, owned by Wilson K. Levering and ridden by A. F. Bonsal, Jr., took the National Hunt Club Steeplechase, with Loyterer second and Rose Dunstan third.

The two flat races, the Groton and the Quansett, were won respectively by Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Highland Captain and John R. Macomber's Crystallite, the latter ridden by Eddie Kummer.

Covey Is Given Unconditional Release by Solons

Washington, June 18.—Stanley Coveleskie, veteran pitcher, has been given his unconditional release by the Washington Senators.

Covey, who came to the Senators from Cleveland, developed trouble with his arm shortly after the season opened and all efforts to relieve him have failed.

He will return to his home in Pennsylvania to rest up and hopes for a comeback.

MELLO OUT TO REGAIN OLD PRESTIGE

With the wild scramble for a shot at Joe Dundee's welterweight crown marked by numerous upsets, the most recent of which was the knockout of Ace Hudkins, seems to have aroused the interest of Hub fans in the approaching meeting of Al Mello of Lowell and Johnny Mendelsohn, the Milwaukee Hebrew. This bout will be staged by the Commercial Club at Mechanics Building on next Thursday night.

Mello always has proved invincible in a Boston ring, in fact he has proved one of the most popular of all local ring gladiators, but Mendelsohn comes to the Hub with a record of many conquests behind him, and the Spindle City boy will be forced to step every inch of the ten-round journey.

While friends of Mello worried over his condition following his meeting with Hudkins, it has developed that his injured optic has come around faster than expected. Mello blames his setback at the hands of Hudkins to this eye, which was closed tighter than a drum in the opening round. This is the same way Hudkins was beaten by Sergt. Sammy Baker, too.

Close followers of boxing figure that the modern day welterweights are evenly matched and as Mendelsohn has clashed with all the topnotchers, there is a possibility of another upset in the ranks of the welters next Thursday night.

STANFORD STARS IN NATIONAL A. A. U. MEET

ESMARAL III WINS FIRST RACE

"Anonymous" Also Crosses Line First and Defeats Racer "Chris Craft"

"Esmaral III.," owned by A. D. MacLeod, of Los Angeles, started off the final day's racing of the Gold Cup motorboat regatta today by winning the 151 Class six-mile event in 9:36 58.

"Miss Westchester," E. M. Hammond, Larchmont, N. Y., was second, and "See-Me Goe," G. T. Backus, Fort Pierce, Fla., third.

"Anonymous" defeated the speedster "Chris Craft," the latter being forced out by becoming waterlogged in the express roundabout, second heat six-mile race in 11:19 38. But "Chris Craft," because of a double in yesterday, won the class prize.

The 151 Class free-for-all, six miles, was won by "Miss Spitfire V," James H. Rand, Jr., Buffalo, N. Y., in 43 51.

Charming Helen Nord Opens Fullworth Home Tomorrow

AMERICAN'S MODEL EXHIBIT TO CONTINUE FOR MONTH

Prima Donna of "Cherry Blossoms" at Wilbur Will Turn Key at 3 P. M.; Will Then Act as Hostess During Informal Tea to Visitors

AT 3 O'CLOCK tomorrow afternoon the front door of the Boston American-Fullworth Home in Melrose Highlands will be formally opened by Helen Nord, prima donna of the delightful "Cherry Blossom" musical show playing at the Wilbur Theatre to mid-season enthusiasm. "Cherry Blossom," a gorgeous musical offering of the Messrs Shubert, which was composed by Sigmund Romberg of "Student Prince" and "Blossom Time" fame, has served to place the personable Miss Nord very firmly in the regard of her many admirers and doubtless many people will be present at the home-opening ceremonies to see both the star and the home.

This dedication ceremony culminates the combined efforts of the Home Builders' Bureau of the Boston American, the William J. Roop Corporation and of several cooperating building material and furnishings companies to present to the public a practical home exhibit embodying the requirements of the average New England family. The visiting home seeker will find much of interest in the six-room Colonial cottage which possesses unusual architectural merit. Few houses of the same size are so cheerfully designed or so economically arranged in fact, many building experts have marveled at its compactness without the sacrifice of any single essential.

SPECIAL EQUIPMENT.

There is much special equipment in the Fullworth Home, which, apart from its utility value, adds distinction to the visible sturdiness of the construction of the house. A folding breakfast nook ironing board, oil burner and leaded glass casement windows are Fullworth features not always found in a dwelling of this type.

The furniture in this delightful Melrose Highlands home has been selected from the warehouses of the Furniture Manufacturers Outlet of 99 Beverly street, Boston, which sells from its ware rooms direct to the public. With the aid of Mr. Frank Reed man the manager of the company choices of furnishings were made with an eye towards economy consistent with quality.

DISTINCTIVE FURNITURE.

In the living room is a three piece suite of taupe colored Chase mohair. This group includes a large divan three chair and club chair. The cushions of this group are reversible and are covered with frieze. Besides these pieces one will find in the living room other appropriate articles in harmonious arrangement.

While the Fullworth Home is unquestionably Colonial in most details, here and there one will notice the incorporation of a device or feature not usually associated with the Colonial. Thus the dining room in order to harmonize with the heavy texture of the colorful Stuc-O-Tint walls there has been arranged a 10 piece dining room set of Italian Renaissance design. This furniture is walnut and the legs of every piece are hand carved. Among the units of this American Walnut suite are a buffet, china closet, server and large oblong table. The chairs are upholstered.

SUN ROOM AND STUDY.

In one of the bed rooms on the second floor is a seven piece Amerol Walnut set of bed room furniture also showing influences of Mediterranean design. In addition to this bed room are two others. These however, have not been fitted as such, but as sun room and study respectively in order to demonstrate the adaptability of the second floor to several uses.

In the sun room is a suite of reed furniture finished in a golden brown with red trimming. In this Reed set is a three section divan with loose spring cushions, upholstered in very rich cretonne, chair, table, rocker and fernery. The upholstery of this furniture is a richly colored cretonne. The study is a delightful little room which may be used for several purposes. It contains a mahogany secretary, gateleg table and four Windsor chairs. While the kitchen contains an excellent pullman break fast set, one can still use a regular breakfast table and chairs in the nook in the kitchen. One will be able to compare this folding nook with the usual type of kitchen furniture at the Fullworth dwelling.

The rugs throughout the Fullworth Home were selected from the widely varied stocks of Stephen M. Saraf of 112 Clarendon Street, who is one of the best known rug dealers in this section. Favorable known not only for the thousands of homes he has supplied in his many years of business, but also for the quality of his Orientals, his splendid store displays and for his annual Model Homes in which as in Fullworth his rugs were one of the most talked of features.

After the opening ceremonies, Miss Nord will act as hostess during afternoon tea, which will be served to all visitors during the period of four to five.

To a feature of the opening of the New England type home will have a distinctly New England color, for it was made possible through the cooperation of four New England concerns.

La Touraine Coffee, the outstanding favorite of a great many of us will be served through the courtesy of the W. B. Quincy Co. Whipping cream will be used and this fact alone will lend a familiar touch to many of courses would feel that coffee could not be at its best with some others. Loose Wiles, makers of the famous Sunshine line of crackers and biscuits, desiring that the public taste these will have placed a sufficient quantity of the celebrated Hi-Hos and Cloverleaves at Miss Nord's disposal.

An interesting feature of the tea will be the modern method of preparing the coffee with the use of the electric Silex coffee filter. This method, approved by health authorities throughout the country is, of course, well-known to many, but will undoubtedly prove informative to some of the visitors.

The method used by the Silex Company is interesting. Utilizing modern merits of cooking and clear glass receptacles, this company built their filter of the finest of heat proof glass, worthy of the most exquisitely appointed table. It was constructed on the lines of the old hour glass, that blend pleasingly with almost any table furnishings, and is set with silvered fittings and an ebony handle.

The immediate popularity that has been granted to the device and its performance is a true reflection of its worth.

The Silex Company functions under the personal executive guidance of Mac Hard, M. D., who is president and general manager of the company.

The Fullworth Home and its many building material and equipment features will be on public display daily and Sunday for a period of one month and also, as stated before, will form much of a neutral nature in a visit to the house.

Good Hardware Home Essential

The hardware for the Fullworth Home is of the celebrated RUSSWIN make. This word for many years has stood for the finest and other products manufactured by the Russell & Erwin Manufacturing Company one of the oldest and most reliable of eastern manufacturers.

It is easy to see that care for the fine house in which expense does not have to be considered as criterion fully as in the Fullworth Homes.

In the case here of careful attention has paid to the design of the fixtures and the requirements which are duly met. The security pin tumbler cylinder in the front door are capable of three billion changes.

READY TO DO THE HONORS Helen Nord, starring in "Cherry Blossoms" at the Wilbur, is ready to lead the procession of visitors into the Fullworth Home.

CURTAINS AND DRAPERIES ARE MODEST IN COST

A tastefully decorated house does not necessarily imply a great outlay of money, for furnishing, draping and decorating a home may be done at comparatively low cost and the effect be most pleasant if the color [illegible] and a few simple ideas are followed.

The curtains and draperies, one of the greatest sources of beauty in the living room, have been worked out by Mr. H. A. Hindley of the Seasons Shop, Inc., of 54 Chauncy Street, who may well be termed an expert in this particular field, and whose work is to the more modest type of home.

It has been the object of the interior decorator since the Puritan days to create a restful background for which nature produce, and yet retain sufficient coloring to give the room a distinctive character. And well it is that total cost has been kept to a most modest figure.

The living room, dining room and staircase, finished in a charmingly shaded neutral tone of Stuc-o-Tint will be curtained with French Beige of imported French Marquisette of exceptional fineness, the bottoms of which will be finished with Rayon Fringe. Valances will be of figured Rayon damask in Wedgwood blue as the predominating color.

The Kitchen will be brightened with white hemstitched voile curtains, unstitched, and with guaranteed all color yellow lace edge. Valances of oilcloths to match increase the effect of beauty yet detract nothing from the simplicity.

The study, a room of distinct personality, will have curtains of white cotton Marquisette, with deep ruffle of the same materials. Doubled effect from valances of blue lend a warmth which with the gateleg table, secretary and Windsor chairs invites to reverie or reading.

The sun room, furnished, as all of the other rooms, by the Seasons Shop store, has curtains of liard Tiles voile, deep cream in color, with all edges cut, and in fast color rayon stitching. Guaranteed fast color floral prints on curtain flounces harmonize with the ruffled valances which complete each window.

The bedroom windows are dressed with white French marquisette curtains with four inch ruffles, having borders stitched with rayon.

The whole matter of selecting curtains and draperies was greatly simplified through the knowledge of the Seasonal Sales Store, whose stocks represent an unusually wide line.

Crackers Answer the Problem of the Hungry Child

By MARTHA LEE

"OH, Mother dear, we want something to eat"—the [illegible] cry when children troop [illegible] dear is never at a loss for something that will exactly [illegible] if her pantry shelves are stocked with crispy, packaged crackers.

There are so many ready-to-use biscuits that you can choose [illegible] as simple or as [illegible] your wish the kiddies to have. Perhaps their favorite is [illegible] healthful, crispy cakes [illegible] puffy little bolsters filled with delicious fig jam.

Zwieback, that delicately flavored, twice-baked toast, which even baby can have, makes a nice after-school bite, too. Or [illegible] those classics of crackerdom—[illegible] leaves, with their creamy [illegible] Or maybe the luscious [illegible] cuits with the mouth watering white sugar fillings.

Before long the ice cream man will be going his rounds and who can resist the childish appeal for "just a little"?

And what more welcome accompaniment for [illegible] wafers? [illegible] they're brittle and [illegible] are ginger snaps [illegible] young and old, and no wonder. [illegible] little snaps, suggestive of [illegible] good old-fashioned ginger bread. Yum, yum! [illegible] apple sauce or prunes, [illegible] dish for the grown-up, or for the supper dessert [illegible] old serve them dipped in cold milk for a special treat.

Sharing their popularity is another member of the snaps family—[illegible] snaps—those delectable cookies that fairly melt in your mouth.

As a substitute for candy, what could be more attractive [illegible] late fingers—that [illegible] tion of wholesome [illegible] cookie dipped in energy-giving chocolate?

Sometimes we wonder how such little tummies can hold so much, but remember, that [illegible] sturdy children are [illegible] and skipping [illegible] of their waking day, they are using an [illegible] amount of energy and are always ready to eat.

That's where [illegible] golden flakes [illegible] pecans, graham and crispy crackers all come into the picture. They are body builders for the boys and girls and time-savers for the busy mother whose days are so filled that anything that conserves her time is welcome.

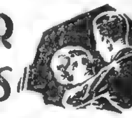
Curled Hands by OLIVER SANDYS



Story of Love and Intrigue; A Girl Who Kept Her Head and a Tiger Woman

Lady Meldreth is fascinated by Eddie Wisden, boyish professional in Pinaud's tea dance resort, London. He meets her advances, but subconsciously is shamed because he fears the criticism of his beloved half-sister, Jill, who is a popular actress-dancer. Lord Meldreth, wealthy and powerful, lives apart from his wife, seeking pleasures the world over.

Wisden tells his commonplace mother that Lady Meldreth would marry him if she were free. Jill's road company in difficulties, she fails to send her weekly contribution to her stepmother, and is bitterly denounced.

Lady Meldreth asks her husband for a divorce without publicity. He agrees to consider it.

Jill's show closes. Walking to the railroad station in a distant suburb of London, she loses her way, and falls fainting and rain-soaked into a shack.

CHAPTER V.

MELDRETH'S valet placed the evening tray with whisky, soda-water and smokes on a small table, stood aside, and coughed.

"Is there anything else you want, my lord?"

Meldreth looked up.

"No, thanks. You can put another log on the fire. [illegible]"

[illegible]

"Yes, my lord," Parton answered. [illegible]

[illegible]

"Good night, my lord."

[illegible]

"I don't like your [illegible] face," [illegible] I wouldn't trust him a yard. [illegible]

"No. He's unattractive, as a matter of fact. He's not much good, but I brought him down here because he can cook."

That subject was dismissed. The two men [illegible] Meldreth was the first to break [illegible]

"I had an interview with Elna yesterday," he said. "After five years. She wants her freedom. She's in love with someone or other."

Honerton nodded.

"I'm not particularly surprised to [illegible]. I fancy I've seen her with the fellow at Pinaud's. People were talking rather. He's a dancing [illegible] or partner, or whatever [illegible] call 'em—quite a kid and [illegible] good looking."

"[illegible] to break 'em up young," said Meldreth bitterly. "It's what [illegible] to me."

"Are you going to let her have her [illegible]"

"I [illegible]," Meldreth spoke indifferently.

"[illegible] certainly should. Marry again yourself later on, and make a success of it this time."

Meldreth shook his head.

"Never again. I've learnt my lesson. I'm through with women."

"But you don't seem to be able to do without them," said Honerton, somewhat pointedly.

"I did not intend to. I meant, I was through with all ideals or any sort of romantic ideas after I was twenty-[illegible]. I've had plenty of amusement."

Honerton looked at him sorrowfully but affectionately.

"You've 'taken your fun where you found it,' Bardy," he said. "But you know what the end of it is, don't you? 'Sittin' and thinkin' and [illegible].' Kipling put it jolly well for a poet. I'm [illegible] you're a philanderer. You're [illegible] and savage mouth and white look."

'Women Always Tumble Over a Man With Money'

"Can't see where the fascination comes [illegible]," [illegible] Meldreth. "Women always [illegible] and always will tumble over a man with money. That's all there is to it."

"[illegible] or a woman [illegible] You mark my words."

"I knelt to Elna—and there was laughter in hell!" Meldreth's voice was low [illegible]

"[illegible] women aren't the same as Elna."

"[illegible] in my experience [illegible]

Love had died—of shock. She had slaughtered it [illegible]. It was hell, I tell you, trying [illegible] ever before the world [illegible] one takes things to [illegible] took to drink instead. I was drunk for a whole week."

"You mean, you consider you're [illegible]"

Honerton got up as he asked the question. He [illegible] in the pouring rain before he [illegible]

"I'm positive of it." Meldreth got up [illegible]. "[illegible] frequently remind [illegible] you see."

"[illegible] love—your infatuation [illegible] with Elna."

[illegible] dragged himself into [illegible] coat.

"[illegible] But the man who was that [illegible] isn't capable of any sort of love now."

They gripped hands. Honerton [illegible]

Meldreth stood in the pathway [illegible]

"O[illegible] Psyche," he ejac[illegible] [illegible] a woman and [illegible] you get your way."

Lord Meldreth Groped His Way to the Garden

It was almost pitch dark. He groped his way [illegible]

[illegible] She caught hold of Meldreth's mackintosh in her tender [illegible] at it insistently. His hand found the silky, dome-shaped head and patted it.

"Want to tell me something?" he asked affectionately. "[illegible] ghost, old girl? It's only one of the grain sacks tumbled over. You always were a bundle of nerves. We'll pick it up and show you. See?"

But it was not a sack. The prostrate and motionless object that had been worrying Psyche, which Meldreth in the most complete darkness had mistaken for a bag of grain, was a much more alarming discovery than that.

As he put out his hands he touched something cold and wet and small, and knew it instinctively for the contact of human flesh.

An ejaculation of astonishment [illegible]. Then he groped for his matches, found one, and [illegible]. The [illegible] beam fell not upon the face of the huddled form, but upon a little twisted gold brooch fastening a thin lawn blouse, so that the first thing that gleamed up at him was but a name—a very brief name, simply "JILL."

He lit another match, and this time located the startlingly pale face of a young woman. It did not concern him to notice whether she was pretty, presentable or plain. She was obviously in far too bad a case to arouse any interest in his breast except a purely humanitarian one.

The match flickered and went out. It was the last. In the darkness he felt for her wrist. His fingers closed upon its slenderness, feeling for the pulse. There was just a little flutter—a temporarily very tired heart had evidently decided it might just as well go on beating . . . It was simply a case of first aid.

Meldreth lifted the slight form in his strong arms and staggered out of the barn, with Psyche following at his heels.

"Ten miles from anywhere—and a girl," he murmured humorously. "It's queer how they will crop up!"

He loved Roen. With a love different from his boyhood emotion. A complete and desperate love with all the forces of his nature awakened, marshaled, fighting violently for survival. A love that filled him with revolt; with scorn and fury for the death-in-life of the past thirteen years.

Love that swept over him in potent and tragic resurgence of youth. Arousing him to joy; to tenderness, to humility.

"You were saying that you phoned me today, Mark?"

"Ah—yes—" He came out of his reverie with a shock. "Yes—I phoned you."

He took another piece of toast. "I'll be eating all your dinner."

"Are you very hungry?"

"As a wolf. Are you serving ham and eggs tonight?"

He said: "How much will you miss me?"

She answered solemnly: "A great deal."

But as he was escorting her on, her cheeks became prettily red, her eyes sparkled. She said gaily: "Isn't this wonderful! If you were only coming along, Mark!"

He thought with flashing insight: "You don't quite mean that, Claire. You'd like to. But you don't. Life will be pleasanter for you without a husband."

How Time Flies!

By Percy Crosby

DO YOU ACCEPT FAVORS WITHOUT A RETURN

You are an old side-stepper when it comes to returning favors and e... you want many persons to consider you a friend.

You have tried to be convincing in your protestations of friendship but you are not well accepted by these you desire as friends.

Acting on your expressed wish to be friendly, someone has mentioned to you that a near and dear one is in a hospital and hopes you may go there for a little call.

Do you go?

No, indeed, you were so busy just then that your enthusiasm evaporated.

You have had a wonderful time at the hands of some persons whose friendship you enjoy greatly and you want to go and see them again.

But are you asking them to join a party where you are to be responsible for the good time?

Oh no, you are really unprepared to entertain.

Of course you hope to see them sometime.

And so on down the list.

You accept favors with enthusiasm but you ... not there when an opportunity comes to reciprocate.

DAILY SHORT STORY

-:-

PARTNERS

By D. Poynton

-:-

It was noon of a September day in the crowded street of the old New England town of Furlingham, was quietly slumberous. But within the office of Brown & Carstairs afternoon-tea, the atmosphere was electric. The original Brown of the firm had long lain with his fathers in the hillside cemetery above the clustered houses. Carstairs, who had been a general favorite, had recently been carried to a more distant burying-ground and was now the subject of rumors, which had effectually roused the drowsy community.

The responsibilities of the firm has developed on the bookish young lawyer, Atherton Brown, who had never shown any interest in the business, but had devoted himself to the cultivation of his esthetic tastes in Europe. Recalled by an urgent telegram, he had reached Furlingham that morning and was having a half quarter of an hour with old James Dixon, the confidential clerk whose gruffness had served as a foil to Carstairs' genuality.

In tones thick with suppressed emotion and phrases of studied commercial bluntness, he blurted out: "You may thank God, young sir, that your father is in his grave, for the old firm is disgraced forever. I wouldn't have believed it of Mr. Carstairs—I loved him, sir—but he has robbed the fatherless and the widow—"

Brown's cheeks paled and his head went down on his hand.

"He has used trust money for his own ends; he has speculated with everything in sight. I'd defy anyone to make head or tail of his accounts, and all the while, Mr. Atherton, you that should have been looking after him, have been wasting time and money no one knows how."

"I knew nothing of all this, Dixon."

"That's my point. You ought to have known, young sir. Where did the money come from that took you gadding to the Ritz and Austria? I'll tell you where. Out of the pockets of poor ma-gulded widows and helpless children. I'll tell you—"

Brown looked up. "Steady, Dixon, you don't know it," he said curtly. "I will see what can be done."

Dixon threw up his hands with a despairing gesture. "It's past your mending," he cried. "I have been fighting off the disclosure for weeks, but come it must. Even the girl Mr. Carstairs got in to help me at Christmas, a pretty, useless piece of goods, who learned bookkeeping through one of those correspondent schools, I suppose—even she must talk of her sick mother and demand her money. We are ruined, sir, out and out. I would not live through this month again for a fortune."

There was a rap at the door. "Come in," cried Dixon mechanically; then turned fiercely on the newcome. "Not yet, Miss Rose. Tell young master can't be worried with you just now."

But the girl stood her ground, her blue eyes aflame with indignation, her slight figure tense. "Forgive my intrusion," she faltered, with a doubtful glance towards the bearded stranger. "Please forgive Mr Brown, but my mother is ill, our landlady is threatening to turn us into the street, and I must have my money. Oh, if Mr. Carstairs were alive, he would not keep it back. He promised that I should have the salary regularly, the day he told me how our money had gone that my father trusted to your father. He begged me to come into the office, and was always kind over my mistakes."

The girl spoke breathlessly, with downcast eyes. Brown gazed at her as if in a nightmare, but Dixon turned on her angrily, "I can't find the money, girl. You are only one of dozens Mr. Carstairs has ruined."

"I cannot believe it," she cried. "He was sorry—"

Brown interrupted her. "Jeannette, have you absolutely forgotten me?"

She looked up with startled eyes. She made a desperate attempt at cold aloofness, then she covered her face with her hands.

Brown sprang to her side and whispered something of which Dixon caught the words, "Three Summers ago," and "Trying to forget."

"Humph!" he muttered, "it's easy ago," and "Trying to Forget."

Jeannette seemed to feel the cold hostility of his eyes. Suddenly he raised his drooping head, exclaiming, "Mr. Dixon, I never guessed that he was the Brown of Brown & Carstairs."

"As I," cried Brown, "never nnew, more's the shame, that you were suffering for my fault."

"One of the dozens!" repented the grim old man. "Let's get to business, sir."

"First things first! Jeannette, will you forgive me?"

"I had no right to set myself up to judge for you," she murmured, but Dixon's grating tones broke in, "This is no time for foolery. First things first, indeed? Then it's honor and honesty and business—all of 'em—before lovemaking."

Brown smiled and said, "Tell us the worst, Dixon, and you'll find that three heads are better than two."

Dixon spared no one, and, as the recital went on, Brown saw himself stripped of everything that had hitherto made life easy, but Jeannette listened undismayed, and he caught inspiration, not only from her happy face, but from her practical suggestions.

At last, after a long conference they worked out, amongst them, such a plan to make reparation to the wronged and to redeem the honor of the good old house that even Dixon was well-nigh convinced that all would be yet be well, and in his great relief he condoned the folly of the lovers.

His wrinkled face twisted itself into a queer smile and, scarcely knowing what he was about, he seized their hands and wished them joy, and assured the head of the firm that "Miss Rose would be more at home as partner than bookkeeper," then he laughed immoderately at his own small joke.

RADIO DIALOG

by C. WILLIAM RADDE

SUMMER is just around the corner. Straw hats (and Summer furs), ice cream cones, vacations, fishing tackle, the price of gas and oil are concerning those whose sex and previous condition of servitude makes these matters important.

* * *

Every year at this time hob up a crop of static eliminators. Bright looking, behind stores, counters assure you, why yes, of course, this device will positively cut out the static and make your music sweet as silk, but, remember it is the ground like that. And how about one of our Special Musicophones? were $16.9, now for $4.99, with a tent thrown in.

The clerks are sincere. They would not tell an untruth to save their jobs, some of them even believe what they say.

But the unfortunate fact is that the static eliminator or vanisher has not been made as yet. The devices which sell for a dollar up or down usually consist of a high resistance leak to ground, which cuts out some static but also cuts out the music in about the same ratio.

An easier way to cut out everything is to take out all the tubes and bury them in moist earth for three weeks. "Static eliminators" eliminate some money from the pockets of the purchasers.

* * *

If you want to hear radio without any static, get on the ice floes around the North Pole. MacMillan is leaving for there soon. There are no more reservations, try Lindbergh. He did not report the slightest trace of static on the way over and back.

THE WITTY SAYINGS OF MEDBURY

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

TRAFFIC in the big cities is so congested that a man who motors down town nowadays is either optimistic or conceited.

ONE fellow bought a car last week and he's still driving it home.

HE'S been trying for so long to find a place to park that his wife has asked for a divorce under the Enoch Arden law.

HE bought the car on credit and couldn't get home in time to make the next payment.

HE got stuck in traffic and fell behind in two installments.

THE finance company solved the difficulty. They told him to make his payments to the traffic cop.

HE gave the officer a check and then got arrested for speeding when he tried to beat it to the bank.

ONE guy who worked in Minneapolis used to park his car in Chicago and walk back.

HE was a flower salesman and it was a good thing he sold century plants.

SOME towns have tourist camps at all the traffic signals.

IT gives the motorist a nice place to rest while he's waiting for the lights to change.

A LOT of the thoroughfares are so jammed that even a ghost would have a hard time crossing the streets.

A CAT tried to cross Boylston street the other day and used up seven lives.

HE said he was saving the other two for Tremont street.

EVERY time a cop blows his whistle a hundred more Fords are leaving Detroit.

THE only way to avoid traffic congestion in the big cities is to move out to Fargo, North Dakota, and use a bicycle.

WHAT IS SYMPATHY?

By LUCY LOWELL

"SYMPATHY," asks a friend of mine, "is exactly what? 'I know a woman,' she goes on, 'a charming personality, who is thought by her friends to be the most sympathetic creature imaginable.

"If you have a disagreement with any one, she at once takes up your cause and is gorgeously offended for you. If you have a sorrow or disappointment, her grief matches yours. And if you have a happiness she is almost overcome with joy.

"As I say, she is a charming woman and we're very fond of her. Yet I must admit that her sympathy is rather wearing at times. I don't mean to be unappreciative, but there is SO MUCH of it!

"It sort of sweeps you along into more sadness, if you're sad, and if you're happy you rather like to be the one to rejoice most, don't you?

"I've always imagined real sympathy to be a gentle thing that ministers to the mind in a soft understanding, rather than a somewhat overwhelming emotion poured into your own state of consciousness."

True sympathy is made up of kindliness and understanding; it never is dominating.

DO NOT ISOLATE YOUR CHILDREN

By L. Lamar Matthews.

EDWARD and Phyllis are poor little rich children. They are surrounded with servants and tutors. There is a governess and a French teacher and a dancing teacher and a riding master. The activities for every hour of every day are all nicely arranged for this twelve-year-old boy and his younger sister.

Their parents believe that the children will never be contaminated by evil associates and never lack any advantages and never want for amusement and pleasures. But Edward and Phyllis lack one essential thing that money cannot buy. They need the companionship of other young people. They long with a solitary longing for somebody to play with them. They very greatly need the strength of character and the iron in their souls that is only to be gained by matching skill and wits with others.

Children learn more from their playmates than they do from their tutors and the playground yields a greater influence than all the gentle ministrations combined. It is among other children that youngsters learn to give and take. It is their playmates who teach them to play fair and to be good sports.

To keep children away from the rank and file of young American boys and girls, is a great injustice to them. There is no better training in skill, courage and perseverance than other children give.

The world is full of men and women who never know how to get along with their associates. They either play the martyr or they go around with a chip on their shoulder or they complain about matters that others accept as part of the business of living. The chances are that such people missed the opportunity of playing and studying and striving along with a lot of other children—no better and no worse than themselves. Your little fellow who stand alone and whine "They've always picking on me," usually develop into grown men who can't get along with others.

To be able to work with other peoples—forget one's own important self and to pull with and for "the team" is the best test of strong character.

Children do not need to be entertained or pampered or spoiled. They need a chance to use their own muscles and brains and abilities.

Very few families are situated so that the children can have the recreations and limitations and hardships imposed upon them that Edward and Phyllis suffer, but there is a tendency among modern parents to make life too easy for their children. There is too much polishing and too little necessity for youthful effort.

Encourage your child to go after what he wants. Let him understand that he must stand or fall by his own persistence and determination whether it be in his amusements, his studies or his small responsibilities at home. Keep your hands off and give him a chance to work out his own salvation.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND.

THERE are times when a husband wonders bitterly WHY, with eight million bachelors in the United States, his wife should have picked on HIM!

No matter how much faith she may have in her husband she usually can't help feeling a little shiver of misgiving when he changes stenographers in the SPRING.

* * *

The greatest shock of a man's life is his discovery that it takes brains rather than "brute force" to run an automobile—or a woman.

The average man sails as astonished, when his wife discovers the fragrance of an alien perfume on his coat-lapel, as if the doctor had found his heart on the right side and his appendix on the left. He simply can't "explain" it!

The way to catch a man's eye, dear heart, is usually through some OTHER man's eyes! A man is never sure he wants anything until he discovers that some other man wants it.

Nowadays a girl is so advanced if being called a sentimentalist that she cultivates callouses all over her heart, wears a coat-of-mail over her vanity, and insulates her emotions.

* * *

No man is getting old until he arrives at that age where what was once a "temptation" begins to look like a TASK and where he is seriously counting his calories that he doesn't even SEE a pretty woman at the next table.

* * *

A woman follows her intuition; but, at this time of year a man is apt to follow almost anything with a "come-hither" look in its eye.

BEST TIPS ON MARKET BORN OF ENTHUSIASM

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

The best tips on the stock market are sometimes born as children of enthusiasm.

* * *

This bull market has brought to the front a number of gentlemen, none of them "tipsters," who have furnished very valuable stock market tips. The mere mention of General

N. L. Amster Thomas Cochran

Motors recalls the remarkable interview credited to Thomas Cochran of the house of Morgan, in which a 100-point rise that later came to pass was forecast. Morgan partners are very rarely talkative about future prices of individual issues.

* * *

Then, when Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific was selling, as we recall it, in the lower 40s, N. L. Amster, Boston director, who has achieved signal fame in the railroad field as well as in other financial lines, expressed the conservative opinion that the stock would sell around 75. It did, and the past week the stock has been setting repeated record highs, reaching 115 as I write. Thus this "tip" was even better than that on General Motors.

George F. Baker, who recently gave some millions to Harvard for a "business school," measures his utterances very carefully. We recall that New York Central, then selling around 142, was the subject of Mr. Baker's comment a while ago. He was quoted as saying he was glad the public had come to have appreciation of the stock's value. This, read between the lines, was sufficient to make many foresee higher prices. New York Central within the week has gone on an $8 dividend basis against $7 paid previously, and as this is written sells above 154.

President Charles B. Strout of the Industrial Bank & Trust Co. tells me his institution's new branch banking rooms at No. 592 Washington street, Codman square, Dorchester, are being opened this afternoon and evening. The branch has long been located in this section, formerly as the Roxbury Trust Co., across the street from the new quarters. Codman square now boasts of two banks. The business section has had a growth of around 100 per cent. in number of mercantile establishments during the past year or so.

GRANBY CALLS REMAINDER OF ITS 7 P. C. BONDS

Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting & Power Company calls for redemption at 105 July 20 remaining $318,000 outstanding of original $2,500,000 7 per cent. convertible bonds.

New York Curb

New York, June 18.—Stock prices were firm in the curb market today, Prairie Pipe gained a point at 185, a new high. Deere was up 1 at 162; Equitable up ½ at 89¾; Richmond Radiator up ¾ at 26¼, and United Cigar unchanged at 35⅝.

Providence Gas Co.

Providence Gas Company declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1 a share on common stock, payable July 1.

TODAY

THE REV. J. H. MELLISH of Brooklyn says the power of great wealth is going out. The power of money is only starting. Industrial feudalism, with dollars for soldiers, and billions for armies, will probably last as long as military feudalism lasted.

The few will rule and have more than they need, as long as some are more intelligent than others.

We shall have "democratic equality" when earth's hundreds of millions shall have become mentally about equal. That's a long way off.

JUDGE GARY moved his hand above a glass sphere two or three times, not touching it. That passage of the hand "actuated an electrical circuit" and with "the Knowles grid-glow relay tube," developed by the Westinghouse Company, carried to Homestead, Pa., 400 miles away, energy that set in operation a 6,000-kilowatt, 700-volt motor, and a new rolling mill started. The moving hand above a glass globe that starts machines 400 miles away, and sets to work thousands of horsepower, is almost as interesting a miracle as Elijah's chariot of fire.

A PLANE expected to go 300 miles an hour will soon be tried by our Lieutenant Williams. Such a machine, leaving Chicago early in the morning, would land Mr. James Simpson, the head of Marshall Field's, who is always in a hurry, at "Voisin's" in the Rue St. Honore, Paris, in time for dinner, and get him back to Chicago in time for business next morning.

Bigger and much faster planes will do that, and more, within ten years.

NEW YORK Botanical Garden and the Oxford Paper Company plan a crop to interest farmers, editors and owners of land not in use. Newspapers use up forests four times as rapidly as trees grow. The Botanical Garden and the Paper Company have developed a tree that in eighteen years grows sixty feet high, eighteen inches in diameter, and is excellent for pulp. Such trees planted as near as possible to big cities and power supplies would solve the paper problem for another hundred years. Also, with Diesel engines, they would help to use our surplus oil.

BELLING THE CAT was no more difficult for the mice than is putting a quietus on Russia for the other powers.

The Big Bear of the North, freed from Czars, Grand Dukes and other parasites, makes Europe pause and think. Instead of uniting to tell Russia "stop propaganda or we will fight you," the nations will individually and politely say, "Won't you PLEASE stop propaganda and let us have the governments that we want?"

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE ☆ ☆ BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN ☆ ☆ BOSTON JUNE 18, 1927

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

For BOSTON: 1—Clean streets.
2—Solution of traffic and parking problems.
3—Better pay for honest public service.
4—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
5—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land; in order that Boston, properly supplied with first-class hotels may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

For NEW ENGLAND: 1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.
3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.

A Method All Can Copy

How Mrs. Lindbergh Keeps Young

Mrs. Lindbergh seems so young, everybody says. Too young to be the mother of a 25-year-old world hero.

What makes her young? Interest in life, work, productive intellectual activity, the world's greatest preserver of physical youth. When your mind ceases to grow and be active the body follows it into stagnation and decay.

Youth is an attitude of mind, and the mind controls the body. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." An active Detroit school teacher has the best chance in the world to keep young. Mrs. Lindbergh is so interested in her work and so faithful to it that she went right on teaching her high school chemistry classes the day after her boy landed in France.

It is not so easy for the average woman to develop and maintain an interest in the intellectual things of life: Current events, science, history, philosophy, drama, music, books. Every woman vaguely feels that she must stay intellectually awake in order to keep up with her husband.

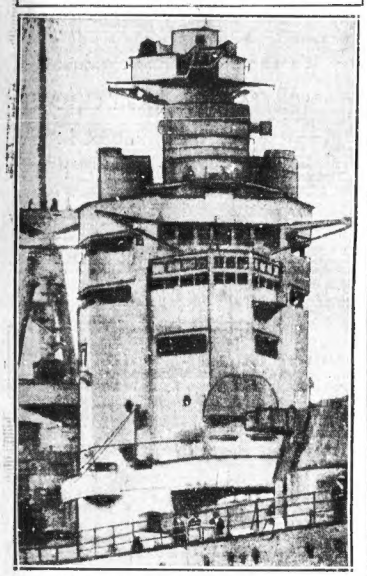
Few realize that it is also necessary in order to keep up with their youth. Which is also a pretty good way to keep up with husbands.

Women cannot all be teachers like Mrs. Lindbergh, but no one is debarred from entering the charmed circle of the world of ideas in which she dwells.

It is about the cheapest form of beauty treatment.

Steel Skyscraper Afloat

What War Could Do to It



HUGE ARMORED TOWER ON H. M. S. NELSON

King George includes among "HIS" battleships, which means the British people's battleships, one great fighting fort called the Nelson.

It is of 35,000 tons burden, cost more than forty million dollars for total equipment, tenders and all the rest that goes with it.

This picture shows an armored tower that rises above the ship, like a floating skyscraper. It contains the fire control appliances, stations for navigating and controlling the ship, etc. On the main decks and turrets are the gigantic guns.

Britain, with her enormous commercial fleet, with ships all over the ocean, needs sea protection for merchantmen, especially fast cruisers. In the recent war she kept her heavy battleships where nobody could get at them, knowing that they were powerless against flying machines and submarines.

A $25,000 flying machine, carrying a 5,000-pound bomb, could sink this tower of steel and the battleship that carries it.

We first junked our ships because the British wanted us to do it. They and other nations very kindly junked some BLUEPRINTS that they had made and "intended to build some day." Now we plan more battleships and other obsolete floating craft.

Some day we shall wake up and build FIGHTING AIRPLANES, against which ships floating on the surface are as powerless as so many rabbits against eagles.

Mistimed

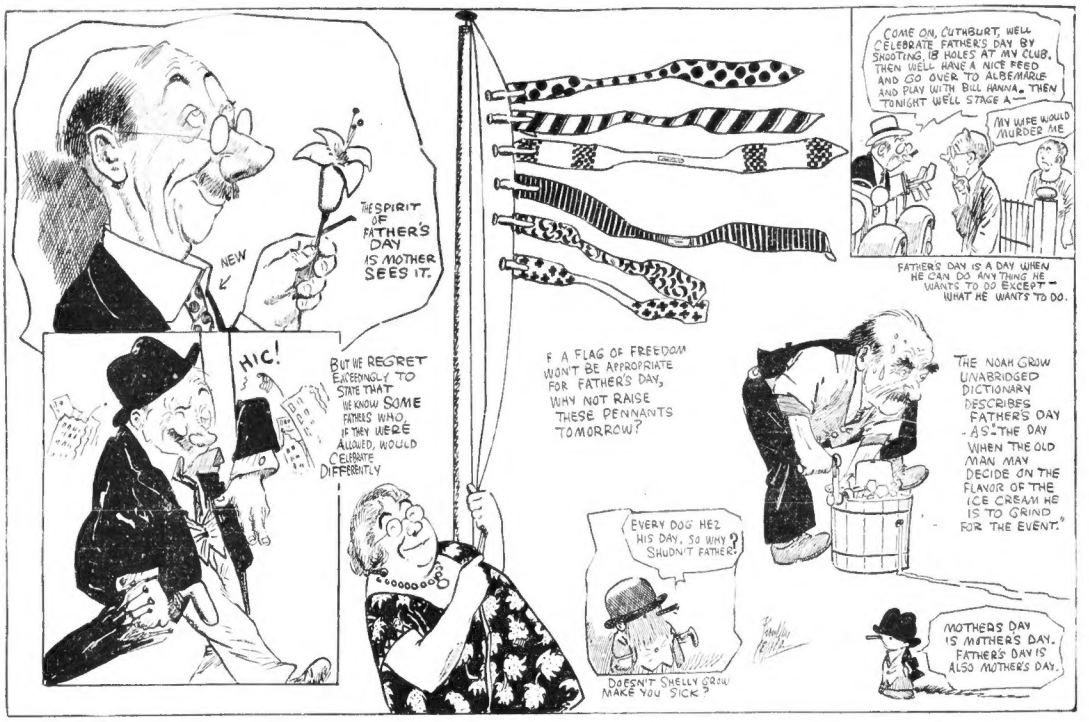
Trip to Moon Not Exciting

Max Valier, the Austrian aviator who has announced that he will fly to the moon, has chosen a poor time to stage a publicity stunt. The public has too many real things to be thrilled over to waste time tuning up its imagination to impossibilities.

The moon is all right to look at and to furnish illumination for the Tennessee liquor industry. But as a place to visit it approximates the lava crater of an extinct volcano.

The moon is dead and all the people have become dead ones.

Tomorrow Is Father's Day -:- -:- By Franklin Collier



A DEFENSE OF THE MR. BABBITTS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

MR. BABBITT seems to be the butt of all critics, sneerers and high brows generally.

He lives in a little town in the Middle West.

He is exactly the opposite of the sort of person that is supposed to live in New York. He is unsophisticated and sometimes referred to as the "butter and egg man" from the West. All wise sharpers select him for their victim. He does not generally belong to a church, but he goes on Sunday with his wife and family. He sends his children to Sunday School. He belongs to the Masons or some other lodge. Also he is a communicant of the Rotary, the Kiwanis or Lion Club.

He speaks bad English, but he makes good money.

He enjoys Pollyanna literature and rejoices in happy endings.

He may be a bit frisky himself, but he does not care to read about friskiness or to see it in other people.

He is generally considered a smug and narrow citizen.

Still there is something to be said in his favor.

Mr. Babbitt makes a living. He is not so learned or clever that he has to go about begging handouts from his friends. He has self-respect enough to stand upon his own feet and wants other people to do the same.

He tells the truth in his business transactions, possibly because it is good policy, but any way he tells the truth, as a rule.

He is moral, perhaps because he is afraid to be immoral, but at any rate he is moral, as a rule.

He does not get drunk and he is not in favor of selling stuff to make other people drunk.

When war comes he shoulders a rifle and marches out to get his head blown off in the trenches.

All political parties kow-tow to him because he is so numerous.

He is not advanced, nor emancipated nor anything of the sort, but just a plain, ordinary citizen. But he has built up in this country the greatest republic that ever was. He has made the United States a nation richer than any nation ever was before.

He pays his debts and believes that other people should pay theirs.

In a town full of Babbits you are not afraid of having your house burgled nor young women folks attacked. You know that whatever the laws are Mr. Babbitt respects them.

Altogether he is a much more comfortable citizen to live with than any of those who are bitten with some new and flaming idea.

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

RECORD.

HOW many New England mayors can boast of the record just rung up by MAYOR EDWARD W. QUINN of CAMBRIDGE who, in the past ten years, has given out more than 23,000 school diplomas? At the graduation exercises held by the Cambridge Latin High School and the Rindge Technical School the mayor awarded 573 diplomas. The thirteen grammar schools swelled the total to at least 2,000.

SOUVENIR.

The large, iron-bound packing case which protected "LINDY'S" airplane, "The Spirit of St. Louis," on board the U. S. S. Memphis from Europe to the United States made an imposing spectacle as it rested on the wharf at Boston Navy Yard, prior to shipment to New Hampshire. It resembles a good sized Summer house, without doors or windows. It will repose on the farm of VICE-ADMIRAL GUY H BURRAGE, commander of the European Naval forces of this country, to whom the filer gave it on the way home from Europe. ADMIRAL BURRAGE'S farm is situated on the Black Warrior river, near Concord.

FAITHFUL.

CAPTAIN P. H. UBERROTH, former commander of the New England Coast Guard district, now retired, tells the following apropos of the fidelity of Chinese cooks he met in his forty years of service. One "John," by particular, was with him on the polar cruiser Bear, until CAPTAIN UBERROTH passed the galley and noticed a new Chinese in charge. "Who are you?" he inquired. "Oh," replied the new cook, "me new cook. John throw up job. Bing me Captain not be hungly."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU want a comfortable life, don't you?

A placid, pleasant existence without too much pressure or haste—with plenty of time for everything—and no nagging or jostling?

And you think that if you plan things well enough, you'll achieve that kind of life?

Don't flatter yourself—you won't.

Real life is never placid nor safe nor even.

Real life implies growth. And growth is never comfortable.

Study any kind of growth you wish—the growth of a beetle or a flower, a mountain or a man.

It is a continual process of conflict and competition, advance and adjustment.

It is continually on the move and on the fight.

For every step of development, a terrific price must be paid.

Think of the small seed, thrusting its way through the crushing earth—of a beetle, fighting for its place in the cruel animal kingdom—or a child, learning painfully to adjust itself to the strange, stupid, unkind world of adults.

Life is never comfortable for either plant, or beetle or child, at any stage of progress.

We like to think that it is comfortable.

We write beautiful poems about Lovely Nature and Our Little Wilderness Friends and the Darling Little Children. And we try to hypnotize ourselves into bliss by chirping that God's in His Heaven and all's cosy with the world. Well, God may be cosy but it's a cinch that His world is having a heck of a time. And that is as it should be.

Life hustles, or is hustled, and hustling hurts. And the higher the form of life, the harder the hustling and the keener the hurt. Even the slow and seemingly serene slug has a tough time of it, but that trouble is magnified a millionfold when slug protoplasm has developed to man protoplasm.

Brains don't bring immunity from pain and danger.

They merely increase the risk of pain and danger.

A squid has a thousand times more chance of being happy than a human. But who would be a squid?

"But I know all that!" you say.

Then, if you know it, why don't you act on it?

Why do you keep on insisting that the successful lives should be happy lives and that if lives aren't happy, something is wrong?

Of course, you're willing to admit that life should be strenuous for all the lower animals and most of your neighbors. But when it begins to get strenuous for YOU what do you do?

You yell your head off. You act as if God were picking on you. He isn't. You're simply involved in the painfully live business of being alive and you ought to be duly grateful.

YOU'RE ON YOUR WAY. KID THOSE JOLTS ARE PART OF THE HIGHWAY. THEN SHIFT YOUR GEARS, STEP ON THE GAS AND STOP PEEVING!

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

WHY sigh for courts of eastern kings with all their splendor, all their show, their gardens where the bulbul sings, their founts where perfumed waters flow? Why dream of wonders far away beyond the gaze of longing eyes, when down the orchard's paths today glad Spring her glowing banner flies? In all the world no fairer sight can ever greet the happy gaze than all these petals pink and white which make this place a fairy maze. Above, the sky's unclouded blue, the golden sunlight's warm caress, and here the pink and pearly hue of all this pulsing loveliness. No rarer sight could ever be than this beauty drifted down to rest awhile on every tree, the orchard's promise and its crown.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

A good book is the precious lifeblood of a masterspirit, embalmed and treasured up on purpose to a life beyond life.

—John Milton.

Few things are necessary to make a wise man happy, but nothing can render a fool contented. That is why nearly all men are miserable.

—Rochefoucauld.

Every man must submit to be slow before he is quick; and insignificant before he is important.

—Smith.
